Hoover Sees Vast Improvement in Credit Situation

NEW CONFIDENCE HALTS HOARDING, PRESIDENT SAYS

Sharp Reduction in Small Bank Failures Also Cited as Indication That Money Is Working Back Into Business.

COMMODITY PRICES STAGE RECOVERY

Executive Enthusiastic Over Outlook as He Explains That Loss of Gold Is Being Checked.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—(P)—President Hoover sees confidence conquering apprehension in money matters, so much so that today he directed public attention to "the very great change" for the better.

Expressly happy, he pointed to these good signs:

"Small bank failures have almost ceased.

"Increase in the price of wheat by 10 or 12 cents a bushel and cotton by $15 to $20 a bale.

"It is no longer advantageous to ship gold abroad.

"Not only has hoarding ceased, but actually $24,000,000 of hoarded money has returned to the banks."

The president was in a genial mood, his smile reflecting the optimism of the statement from which he read.

Although he held a typewritten copy of what he intended to say, revised in several places by pencil notes, he departed from it often as he spoke to newspaper correspondents crowded about his desk.

At one point, when he referred to "a wave of great apprehension" in this country following the abandonment of the gold standard in England, he added in an aside that the real volume of this apprehension had not been appreciated by the average American citizen.

Text of Statement.

The text of Mr. Hoover's statement was:

"I am happy to note the very great change which is evident in the credit situation since the announcement of financial plans on October 7.

"Following the announcement of the gold standard in England, a wave of great apprehension spread over the country. Hoarding of currency rose to the high point of $20,000,000 a week between the time of the announcement of the credit pool and other credit measures.

"Country bank failures had risen to nearly 20 a day during this period. At the same time the drain of gold abroad due to the alarm of foreign holders of American credits had in this period risen to as high as over $200,000,000 a week.

"Evidence over the last week indicates that not only has hoarding ceased, but actually $24,000,000 of hoarded money has returned to the banks. The small bank failures have almost ceased, the last report showing only seven out of 20,000 total.

"Foreign exchanges are returned to a basis at which it is no longer advantageous to ship gold abroad.

"The practical effect of this recovery is shown in an increase in the price of wheat by 10 cents or 12 cents a bushel and cotton by $15 to $20 a bale.

Mr. Hoover has kept in almost constant touch with the business and credit situation, both national and international. Since the beginning of the week he has conferred with lead-

Salary Tangle Looms In Louisiana Dispute

BATON ROUGE, Oct. 30.—(P)—Further confusion over who is Louisiana's official family arose today when State Treasurer H. B. Conner temporarily sidetracked a salary warrant for Alvin E. King, president pro tem of the senate, now functioning as lieutenant governor.

The warrant, issued by State Auditor L. B. Baynard, was for the lieutenant governor's salary from October 13, the day King took the oath as chief executive, claiming Huey P. Long vacated the governorship by certifying his election to the United States senate.

With public vindication and an apology as prizes, both President Hoover and officials of the Navy League fired tentative shots today in preparation for their engagement over the administration's naval policy.

The White House, seconded by Secretary Stimson, scored first. From the executive mansion there issued a statement attributing a "tissue of falsehoods" to the league. The secretary of state added there had been "flagrant misstatements" evidently deliberate.

The Navy League countered in silence. Declining to amplify the statement in which its president, William Howard Gardiner, accused Mr. Hoover of an "abysmal ignorance" of naval needs, the league issued a call to its executive committee to meet the coming day.

Throughout the capital today there was much talk of the unexpected war in which the president last night challenged the league's claims that he was trying to "starve" the navy, in detriment to its comparison with the fleets of England and Japan.

Although the Navy League has many a tilt with government leaders over naval policy, no case similar to the present could be recalled. The biggest difference lay in Mr. Hoover's call for an apology from Gardiner after a presidential committee has investigated his claims.

Although the president set no definite time for the appointment of the committee to investigate Gardiner's claims, he said late this afternoon he was waiting only "to secure a list of the members of the Navy League" before taking this step.

As soon as that list is obtainable, the president told newspapermen, "I shall select from it a committee to investigate the charges."

The objects of the president's inquiry are first, to call the attention of the country and members of the league to the tissue of falsehoods that have been spread by Mr. Gardiner, and, second, to show the true purpose of these falsehoods and the people who are interested in propagating them.

Then, shortly after word of the league's call to its executive committee was known, Secretary Stimson spoke.

He objected principally to a statement by Gardiner that President Hoover and Prime Minister MacDonald, of Great Britain, when they met in 1929, "reached agreements that have

WATER SHORTAGE INCREASES PERILS OF FOREST FIRES

Flames Continue To Sweep Georgia Timber. Blaze Controlled in "Protected" Area.

VALDOSTA, Ga., Oct. 30.—(P)—The glow of forest fires reddened the skies in scattered sections throughout south Georgia tonight as thousands of acres of valuable pine forests, parched by weeks of dry weather, were destroyed.

An acute water shortage is adding to the difficulties of fighting the flames, which are reported in the entire area of extreme south Georgia, from Brunswick, on the coast, west to well beyond Thomasville.

The Withlacoochee and Suwannee rivers are drying up and hundreds of creeks and wells are dry.

While no one would make an estimate of the damage because of the lack of detailed information from the vast area in which the fires were reported, thousands of acres of the state's finest forests already have been burned over. Great additional acreage was threatened.

Lumber company employes, naval stores operators, farmers and members of timber protective associations fought the fires on dozens of fronts. Spraying machines and wet sacks were used with success in numerous instances, and in others men and mules worked with plows to dig "fire breaks" in an effort to stop the flames.

The closely supervised forests included in timber protective associations, and those well guarded by lumber and land companies fared best in the fire prevention work. The timber protective associations in numerous instances have steel lookout towers scattered throughout the acreage reported.

Lowndes county, of which Valdosta is the seat, has not suffered extensive damage, although it has numerous fires. Lumber and land agents here said the greatest fires were raging in nearby counties, especially Echols, Ware, Clinch and Wilcox.

The J. N. Bray company, with offices here, and extensive land holdings throughout this area, said fire fighting work is being kept in constant force wherever a fire is reported on the company's lands. It announced that only about 200 or 300 acres out of 25,000 acres in the threatened area had been lost.

From Waycross came reports that scores of fires were destroying forests in the area south of Waycross, and that the burning districts of the famous Okefenokee swamp, part of which lies in Clinch, Ware and Charlton counties. A serious fire was reported in the Perry Barber settlement 10 miles from here.

A light rain fell in the Valdosta territory yesterday but it was not sufficiently heavy to check the flames, which are being carried along through the tinder-dry trees by a light breeze. Great pine trees, some of them more than 60 feet tall, are being burned from top to bottom. Because of their great height, the embers fly far.

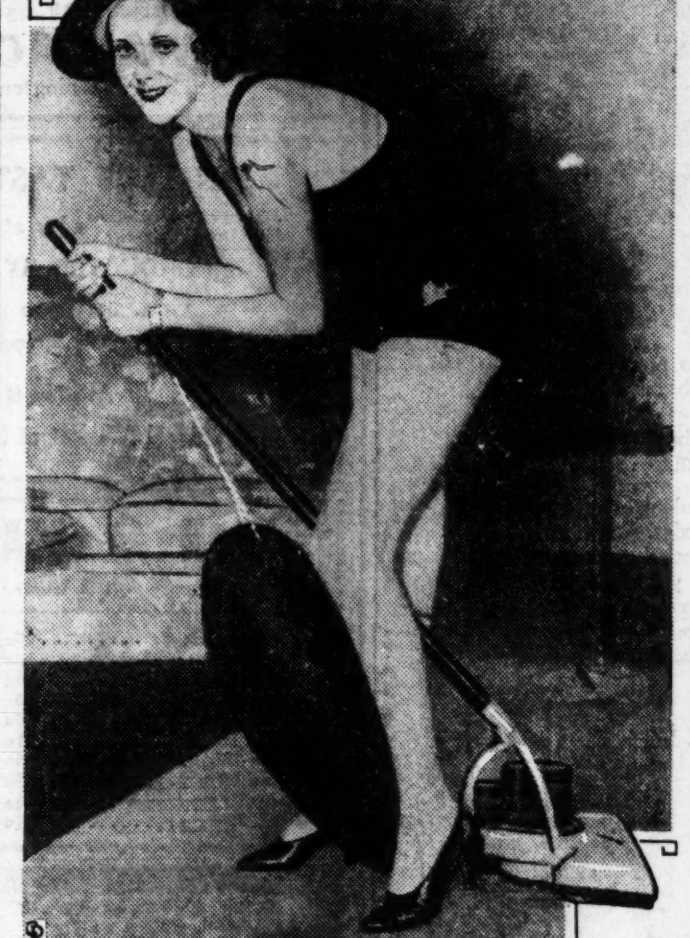

In Atlanta today, State Forester Lufburrow reiterated a request to Georgians that they do everything possible to protect their forests. Charles J. Haden, of Atlanta, who has extensive land holdings in south Georgia, said forests under supervision of timber protective associations were fared well, but that such area represented a very small portion of the total acreage in forests. He urged the organization of additional timber protective associations to afford better protection to the state's forests.

WILLIAM EDISON PLANS CONTEST ON FATHER'S WILL

Son by First Marriage Calls Allotment of Wealth to Younger Half Brothers "Unfair."

WILMINGTON, Del., Oct. 30.—(P)—A court fight over the division of the Thomas A. Edison millions loomed today when William L. (Billy) Edison, a son of the famous inventor, announced he would contest his father's will.

In a statement, the son, one of the inventor's three children by his first marriage, said he would charge undue influence on the part of his stepmother and his half-brother, Charles Edison.

William characterized the will as "unfair," and said he would not be alone in the attempt to break the instrument. He declined to say who would join him.

Thomas A. Edison's three children by his first marriage are William, Thomas A. Jr. and Mrs. Marion Oser. There are three children by the second marriage, Charles, Theodore and Mrs. John E. Sloan.

The will of the inventor, filed in New Jersey yesterday, left the major part of the estate to Charles and Theodore, with a provision they may divide the residue of the estate among all six children when and as they shall deem judicious. Unofficial estimates of the value of the entire estate ranged from $15,000,000 to $50,000,000.

"I have decided to contest the unfair will of my father," said William L. in his statement. "Unfair influence was brought to bear on my father by Charles Edison and my stepmother, Mina Miller Edison."

The codicil attached to the will was made only a few months before my father's death, which in itself, knowing he was about to die, showed what influence my stepmother and Charles had over him.

"Every invention of importance that my father made and from which he gained such a reputation was conceived long before he met his second wife; none of great importance was created after his marriage to Mina Miller Edison."

"I do not care to say who will join me in the contest, but you can be assured I will not be alone."

YOUNGER SONS SILENT ON THREATENED CONTEST BY ROBERT J. CAVANAGH.

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Oct. 30.—(P)—The Edisons, says one of them, were like any large family, and they loved each other with no regard to the fact that three of them were by the first wife of Thomas A. Edison and three of them by the second.

Atlanta Woman Faints As Negro Is Executed

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Oct. 30.—(P)—The first woman ever to view an electrocution in Georgia fainted today while O. C. Hendrix, Atlanta negro who slew her brother, died in the electric chair.

Mrs. J. Mintz, of Atlanta, asked permission to see the negro executed. Mrs. Mintz's brother, Sam Nisn, Atlanta grocer, was shot to death in a holdup. Warden J. M. Butts granted her permission.

When Hendrix was led into the death chamber Mrs. Mintz became slightly ill. After the slayer had been strapped into the chair and the current applied, Mrs. Mintz fell prostrate.

CAN'T ENFORCE LAW, CHIEF BEAVERS SAYS

Chief of Police James L. Beavers Friday reiterated a previous statement that prohibition laws cannot be enforced in Atlanta with the present force.

"I have never had occasion to retract the statement I made earlier in the year—that it was impossible to enforce the prohibition laws in Atlanta with our police force," Beavers said. "I said at that time that when we arrested bootleggers three others took his place. The grand jury made a similar statement. We are still doing all we can to cope with the situation."

Repeal of the 18th amendment and enactment of proper regulatory laws to govern definitely and strictly the sale of any intoxicating liquor were recommended Friday in presentments of the September-October term Fulton county grand jury.

"It is our belief that the cause of temperance would be served in this manner, whereas, under the present prohibition laws, we feel that a great deal of the results of educational work toward temperance have been lost since the passage of the 18th amendment to the constitution," the grand jury declared.

The jury revealed that "sworn testimony before us was to the effect that it was impossible to stop the flow into Atlanta and the sale illicitly of liquor, where one source was discovered and stopped, three other sources were developed."

Ill-kept Problem.

The best that could be done by officers of the law was to arrest such offenders that could be caught, and the number so arrested was increasing, due largely to the increased traffic in liquors, the grand jury pointed out.

It was found that many people normally law-abiding had been urged to disregard for law, in fact, in some cases, take a delight in breaking the prohibition laws. The trouble does not seem to be so much in the drinking of the liquor as in the illicit sale bringing in revenue to criminals, causing conspiracies to take place under cover, and in which conspiracies other crimes are hatched as well as plans made to transport or sell liquor," the jury said.

Other recommendations of the grand jury include:

JOHNSON URGES HOOVER DEFEAT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—(P)—"Charging the administration has 'jockeyed and juggled' the nation into the League of Nations, Senator Johnson called upon the people today to reaffirm American policies next year through the ballot box.

In a formal statement, the California republican said:

"The only remedy left the people against their betrayers, is the ballot box."

"Next year Americans must reaffirm the old American policy of friendship for all nations, political connections with none, and in emphatic tones again say this government is American, and must be administered not first for Europeans, but first for Americans."

Johnson, who was one of the original irreconcilables who opposed the League of Nations in the senate, said the administration had violated the constitution in participating in League of Nations proceedings over the Sino-Japanese dispute.

"After 12 years," he said, "our

SAUNDERS LIBERTY OPPOSED BY JURY

Executive interference with the 24-month bribery sentence of ex-Councilman W. E. (Butch) Saunders would nullify the earnest work of the Fulton county grand jury and establish a bad precedent, Governor Richard B. Russell was told Friday by members of the jury who called on him at the capital.

Led by Julian V. Boehm, foreman, the jurors, who had just been discharged by Judge John D. Humphries in superior court, informed Governor Russell that they bear no malice toward Saunders and have sympathy for him, but that they want to see the law enforced.

Mr. Boehm pointed out that many of the city hall graft cases that have been tried, and that clemency for Saunders probably would have had effect on trial of the other cases. The grand jurors labored hard and long on the city hall cases, and do not want to see their work undone, he added.

Governor Russell told the grand jurors that the Saunders case has not come before him officially, but that he will give the petition of the jurors earnest consideration when he

Both Parties Indorse Gov. Roosevelt's Plan

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—(P)—A $20,000,000 reforestation plan embodied in a proposed constitutional amendment supported by Governor Roosevelt and opposed by former Governor Alfred E. Smith was indorsed today by the state chairmen of both the democratic and republican parties.

W. Kingsland Macy, republican chairman, and James A. Farley, head of the democratic state committee, in a joint statement asked the support of voters for the amendment in next Tuesday's election.

South's Improved Conditions Presage Prosperity's Return

BY MARK TEMPLE,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

Encouraging signs in all parts of the south bear token of returning prosperity this fall. A survey of activities in business and industrial lines Friday revealed that conditions in the south are better and that the turn of the cycle apparently has occurred.

Among the many reports giving evidence of the end of the depression were the following:

The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company has expended $2,400,000 of the $3,100,000 to be spent on Virginia plants and equipment this year.

First of the new buildings of the $2,500,000 Marine hospital, a government project in Louisiana, will be completed within 30 days.

Every major industrial plant in Knoxville, Tenn., territory is in operation.

The Mississippi Barge Line Company, operating on Ohio and Mississippi rivers from Cincinnati through Memphis to New Orleans since late 1930, shows its first profit month in September on fast express inland waterway barges.

The name of every contributor and the amounts given to the Atlanta Community Chest and emergency relief campaign will be published in the three Atlanta newspapers, beginning next week.

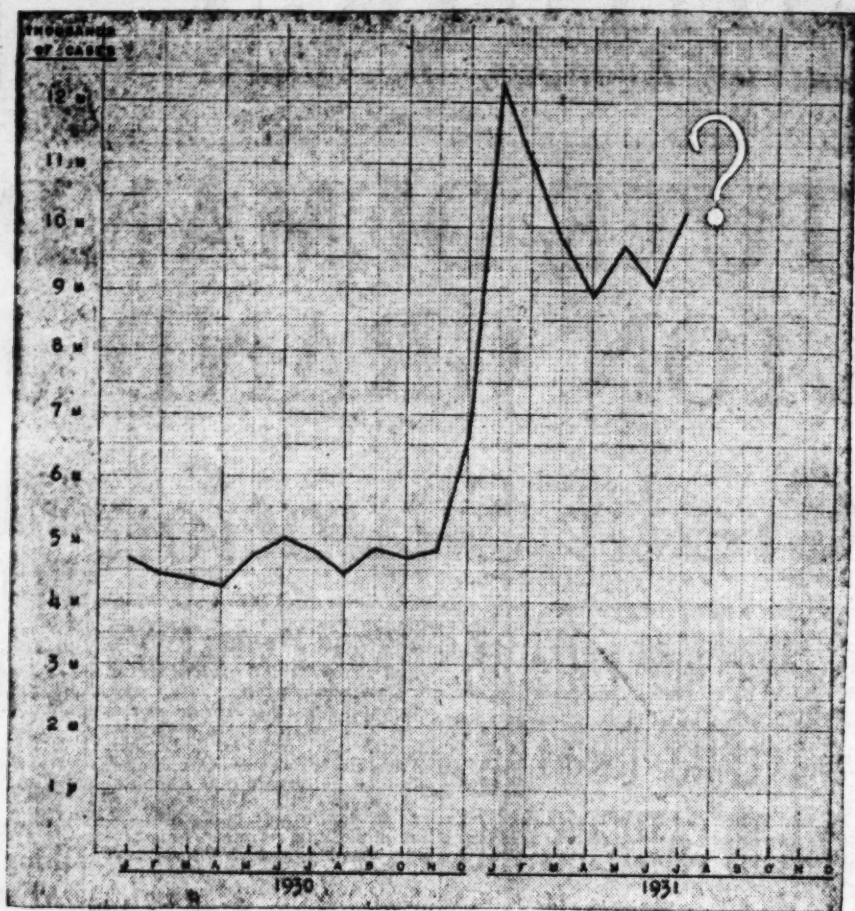

Also, at the conclusion of the campaign, a "blue book" giving contributors names and amounts will be published and distributed.

This action was unanimously decided upon Friday afternoon at a full meeting of the advanced gifts committee, which authorized a committee, headed by Harold Hirsch, as chairman, together with Preston Arkwright, Eugene B. Black, Ryburn G. Clay, Major John S. Cohen and John K. Ottley, to supervise this work.

This special committee made the following announcement Friday night:

"Contributors' names and the amounts they have contributed will be published both to let Atlantans know those who have given generously and also to acquaint the public with the names of those citizens who through assessed of liberal means, have

The demands on Atlanta's agencies of charity and welfare have more than doubled. In all of 1930, there were 56,376 cases of relief work recorded. The first seven months of 1931 saw 70,735 cases handled—an average of more than 10,000 a month.

Your Community Chest and Emergency Relief Committee have estimated the needs for the coming year at $805,000. Unless the campaign for funds reaches this goal, many Atlanta homes will suffer want and despair this winter. Atlanta must not fail.

Because of the crisis, the Community Chest and Emergency Relief have combined. Like any other intelligent, well-managed charitable program, the plan of the combined activities is to provide life's basic necessities—Food, Clothing, Shelter, Character Formation, Medical Care, Work—for the unemployed, the impoverished, the aged, the children, the sick and the friendless in the community.

If you have already subscribed, is it asking too much to suggest that you increase your pledge?—or when the campaign solicitor (serving entirely without pay) calls on you, give more than you think you can—more than you have decided upon. Your gift, by helping the unfortunate, returns many benefits to you by making Atlanta a better place in which to live.

Minors Barred in Hearing of Suit Involving Harding's Alleged Love

TOLEDO, Ohio, Oct. 30.—(AP)—The trial of Miss Britton's $50,000 libel suit against C. A. Klunk Marion, Ohio, today became a hearing for adults only.

Miss Britton, author of "The President's Daughter," which alleged the late President Warren G. Harding was the father of her 12-year-old child, is seeking damages from Klunk on the ground he circulated a book, "The Answer to the President's Daughter," which she claims defamed her character.

Federal Judge John M. Killits ordered all persons under 21 years of age from the court room after he was told high school students had been attending the trial. "Such persons can get nothing but impressions destructive of good character from the trial," the judge commented.

Attorney William F. Marsteller, counsel for Miss Britton, told the court he was making an exception to this statement. He said there was nothing salacious in the trial so far unless matter in the books was construed.

After Judge Killits announced minors would be barred, several young people left the room. He said he might decide later to exclude all visitors and even the press.

Lengthy excerpts from Miss Britton's book then were read to the jury, after which the defense an-

BALDWIN PLEDGES AID TO MCDONALD

Triumphant Conservatives Will Not Attempt To Run Government.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Stanley Baldwin, whose conservative party has 472 of the 615 seats in the next house of commons, already has given assurance he will not attempt to run the government. It was learned today.

Mr. Baldwin agreed, it was understood, to a suggestion that conservatives get no more than 12 of the portfolios in the next cabinet. That cabinet is expected to have the usual 21 members, and 12 is considered a modest total for the conservatives in view of their overwhelming parliamentary strength.

Accredited versions of Mr. Baldwin's decision are in line with his statement immediately after the general election Tuesday that the victory belonged to the national government and not to any one party.

Prime Minister Ramsey MacDonald left London today for his country home, Chequers, to rest between sessions of study on the measures to better Britain's economic and financial condition which will be advanced by his government. Mr. MacDonald expects to return to London Sunday evening.

No Action. Belief was reiterated in informed circles that no action will be taken in regard to tariff protection—emergency or otherwise—until after the Christmas holidays.

King George received two members of the government today—Philip Snowden, retiring chancellor of the exchequer, and J. H. Thomas, secretary for dominions and colonies.

In a discussion lasting more than half an hour Mr. Snowden, it was understood, presented the king with first-hand information on the financial state of the country.

It is believed likely Mr. Snowden may get the position of lord president of the council in the new cabinet. This post involves no particular duties and is conferred for the purpose of providing the administration with the advice of men particularly conversant with national problems. Such a plan would mean raising Mr. Snowden to the peerage, as he is not a member of the new house.

"Jim" Thomas reported to the king on the recent disturbances in the island of Cyprus. It is expected Mr. Thomas will continue as secretary of state for dominions, but the portfolio for colonies may be taken from him.

Little Time. The necessity of selecting his cabinet colleagues gave Mr. MacDonald little time to concentrate on his program of economic rehabilitation. The personnel of the new government is expected to be made public next week.

Of first importance is the post of chancellor of the exchequer, for which Neville Chamberlain was mentioned, although some objection was raised that he was too closely identified with the protectionist policy.

Among the alternatives suggested was Mr. Baldwin, who served as chancellor of the exchequer under Andrew Bonar Law in 1922.

Parliament will meet Tuesday to swear in new members and elect a speaker. Edward A. Fitzroy, conservative, has been speaker since 1928 and doubtless will be re-elected.

The real opening will occur November 10 when the speech from the throne will be read, and debate on the address in reply will follow without delay.

WORLD CREDIT BANK

OPPOSED BY LAVAL

PARIS, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Premier Laval, homebound from his conferences with President Hoover, is not considering the proposal to form an international credit bank for thawing out Germany's frozen credits, the Havas News Agency said today. French bankers were said to be opposed to the scheme.

M. Laval was said to be keeping his own counsel regarding his plans to reconsider German reparations payments, and has not even informed his cabinet of his conversations with President Hoover in that respect. He is scheduled to see German Ambassador Von Hoesch after a meeting of his cabinet ministers next Tuesday.

The scheme as advanced by Emile Francqui, Belgian minister of state, is regarded in banking circles here as an effort of certain private bankers to release their own funds sunk in Germany. Any plan not giving the French the full moral benefit, a high official said, will be acceptable neither to the government nor the Bank of France.

A strictly French plan to deal with the situation has not been formulated, it was said, but the turn of events in Paris and Berlin within the next few days is expected to bring the two countries face to face with credits and reparations and to demand a course of action.

U.S. LINES TURNED OVER TO NEW HOLDING FIRM

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—(AP)—The United States Lines, premier American flag service in the north Atlantic, today passed into the hands of one of the strongest shipping combines ever formed in this country.

The 11 passenger ships, including the giant Leviathan, are now owned jointly by the Dollar-Dawson west coast combination and the Roosevelt International Mercantile Company of New York.

The shipping board, which sold the lines to Paul W. Chapman and his associates for $16,300,000 in 1929, obtained a guarantee that adequate sailing schedules will be maintained.

The combine also promised that the existing vessels and the two additional fast liners now being built will be operated in the north Atlantic and that the flag ship, Leviathan, will make no less than seven annual sailings.

DR. JULIUS KLEIN SPEAKS TUESDAY

Wide Interest Shown
Here in Lecture by Famous Economist.

Atlanta citizens will hear the opinion of one of the best minds in the United States Tuesday night at the Biltmore hotel when Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce, talks before the meeting of the Presidents Club, according to Colonel Frederic J. Paxon, directing arrangements for the dinner. A letter from the noted economist Friday informed Colonel Paxon that his subject would be "The Business Outlook."

Considerable interest throughout the city caused the Presidents Club to throw its address open to the general public, and all who wish to attend may do so by making reservations up to Monday at noon, when the list will close, Colonel Paxon said. A charge of $2.50 a plate will be made and checks should be mailed direct to Colonel Paxon at Davison-Paxon Com-

Good Samaritan Drive Postponed Until Close of Chest Campaign

The thousands who have been looking forward to the start of what is known as the Good Samaritan Buying Campaign will doubtless be disappointed at the necessity for a postponement of its inauguration.

More than 50 representative business men in Atlanta, as well as national advertisers having wide distribution in the Atlanta market, have co-operated in the movement to give $6,000 in cash away during a six-month period to churches and charities of the city which may be interested in making purchases with these funds, and by utilizing the sales slips, cash register receipts, cartons or wrappers from advertised brands and concerns participating serving their church or favorite charity.

The Good Samaritan Campaign in Atlanta was designed as the seventh of its kind in the south, and while it was announced last Monday in The Constitution that the campaign would open today, it has been decided that owing to the fact that the Community Chest drive will continue during the coming week, it would be well to postpone the opening of this particular effort designed to be of assistance to churches and charities desiring to share in a division of the cash awards offered.

Colonel Paxon, Dr. Klein will be introduced at the dinner by Clark Howell, editor of The Constitution.

Mrs. W. P. Dunn, president of the Atlanta Woman's Club, said that a number of clubwomen of the city plan to attend the lecture.

Dr. Klein will talk over the radio network of Columbia Broadcasting Company Sunday night at 7 o'clock on "Railways and Business," a subject occasioned by the recent ruling of the interstate commerce commission concerning rate increases for railroads.

That change will cover the cost of the dinner.

Dr. Klein is one of the noted economists of the country and for many years has been considered an authority on general business conditions. He will arrive here at 5:25 o'clock Tuesday afternoon and leave at 11 o'clock that night.

While here Dr. Klein probably will confer with W. L. Mitchell, district manager of the Atlanta office of the department of commerce.

A large number of Atlanta's leading business men and women have made reservations for the dinner and one of the most representative audiences is in prospect, according to

BEAVERS MAY NAME SUCCESSOR TO POST

Principals in the attempted ouster of Chief of Police James L. Beavers Friday awaited a conference between Mayor James L. Key and Beavers, when the mayor will request Beavers to file an application for retirement on a pension.

Previously Beavers said he would do so when told by the mayor, who is his personal friend and political adviser.

There were persistent reports at the city hall that Beavers will seek to make his retirement effective January 26, the date of his forty-third year of service in the department, but the chief declined to discuss the matter.

Key Friday corroborated a statement of committee members that he has not attempted to dictate who Beavers' successor shall be. He added, however, that Beavers has been in close touch with the department for many years and that his recommendations, of course, will be considered in selection of a new chief.

"The committee and myself, of course, will consider any recommendation Chief Beavers makes as to his probable successor," Key said. "We will not be bound to accept it, but it should have great weight. I have not attempted to force the committee to name any person and will not. We can agree amicable. There will be no wide divergence of views when the matter is finally settled. The only stipulation I have made is that the new chief come from the department. I think that fair to the public and also to the men in the department."

Russell Appeals To Legionnaires To Help Jobless

Governor Russell called upon the American Legion posts of Georgia to aid in the unemployment situation and to carry into effect the relief program adopted by the national organization at its recent convention in Detroit. The appeal was made by the chief executive Friday in an address before the Atlanta post in session at the Ansley hotel.

Characterizing the employment relief program as one of the "greatest opportunities for service ever presented to the legion," Governor Russell urged the Atlanta post, as the largest in the state, to take the lead and set the pace for effective realization of the program.

"One of the essential factors in combating the unemployment situation, which threatened to be almost a national crisis, is organization," the governor stated. "The American Legion in adopting a program for unemployment relief avails itself of an opportunity to be viewed as one of the most important organizations of the nation."

"Georgia with its 120 posts spread throughout the state provides an organization such as is necessary for carrying out effective unemployment relief, and the Atlanta post can take its place in heading this movement."

The pioneer work done in this field by the Legion post at Albany has received wide recognition and was accorded the tribute it well deserved at the national convention of the American Legion, the governor stated. He added that "in this time of emergency, if he could not turn to the posts of the American Legion and call upon his fellow legionnaires," he did not know where the necessary aid might come from.

GIRL, 5, SAVES LIFE OF BABY BROTHER

James Scoggins, 3 years old, of Third avenue, Hammond Park, probably owes his life to the presence of mind of his 5-year-old sister, Frances. The little boy was standing in front of an open fireplace Friday afternoon, when his clothes became ignited. Frances ran for her mother, Mrs. Homer Scoggins, who was in the back yard. Mrs. Scoggins extinguished the flames with her bare hands. James was carried to Grady hospital, seriously burned about the body and legs.

KIN OF WOUNDED MAN DEPART FOR BEDSIDE

Relatives of Tom McElroy, 28-year-old foreman for the Pittman Construction Company, left Atlanta Friday night for Johnson City, Tenn., where McElroy lies desperately wounded, following a shooting early Friday morning.

McElroy, who formerly lived on White street, S. W., was said to have been shot by a negro hotel porter, following an argument over "a certain woman." Johnson City police said that witnesses to the shooting said that McElroy threatened the negro.

"Ex-Bear of Street" Sees Better Times

If a wolf may appear in the guise of a sheep—then a "bear" may very well grow the habits of a "bull."

That, although not the exact reasoning of the former Wall Street operator, will sufficiently illustrate that William H. Danforth is now one of the most vociferous boosters of better business ahead. He was in Atlanta Friday, where he had flown in his own high-powered plane with Joseph Gatins, former Atlanta, and Ray C. Van Arsdale, of New York.

Mr. Danforth was formerly one of Wall Street's best known "bears," but he has changed and now believes there will be no more "new low" markets and that business is decidedly on the upgrade.

HATCHER, ON STAND, PLEADS FOR HIS LIFE

Haden Sentenced to Die on Dec. 11; Attorneys To Take Appeal.

MACON, Ga., Oct. 30.—(AP)—Ross Hatcher Jr., 23, pleading for his life in Bibb superior court this afternoon, told a jury that incidents of the night of August 25, when he is alleged to have been with Charles R. Haden on an escape which resulted in indictment of the two on a charge of attacking an 18-year-old girl, "seem like a horrible nightmare to me."

"I can hardly believe it," Hatcher read from a five-page statement. "If I had not been drinking, it would never have occurred."

Arguments of counsel will begin at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, and the case will reach the jury some time in the afternoon.

Oliver Custer, associated with Mr. Park in the defense, will make the opening argument in Hatcher's behalf. T. A. Wallace, special prosecuting attorney, will open for the state, and Solicitor Charles H. Garrett will follow. Mr. Park will conclude.

No defense was offered other than the statement of Hatcher. It came at the closing session of the court this afternoon, after the young victim of the Haden-Hatcher assault had repeated the same evidence which Thursday afternoon resulted in the death penalty for Haden.

Though he denied actually assaulting the young woman, or even intending to do so, Hatcher said to the jury that "the worst part of this whole horrible affair is the disgrace and sorrow brought my sweet little wife and baby girl, and my mother and sisters."

Calmly, apparently unperturbed, Haden, 22, sat before Judge Malcolm D. Jones in Bibb superior court this afternoon and heard the sentence of death pronounced.

A jury Thursday afternoon had condemned him to die. Haden knew, however, that the sentence was a mere formality. Thomas S. Felder, his attorney, had today filed a motion for new trial will be filed in a few days, and a subsequent appeal to the Georgia supreme court, would supersede the sentence.

The sentence was pronounced by Judge Jones at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon. It was after the trial of Hatcher, his alleged associate in crime, had been recessed for the day. Haden was not asked to stand as Judge Jones read the death decree.

SINGLETON IS NAMED NEW HEAD OF G.A.S.S.

Calhoun Executive Chosen President by Superintendents at Savannah.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 30.—(AP)—H. T. Singleton, superintendent of Calhoun county schools, was elected president of the Georgia Association of School Superintendents tonight. He succeeds B. M. Grier, of Athens, in the office.

J. C. Thomas, of Adel, superintendent of Cook county schools, was elected vice president to succeed Mr. Singleton in that office and C. J. Cheves, of Ashland, Ga., was chosen secretary and treasurer in place of Mr. Thomas.

One new member was elected to the executive committee, F. F. Rowe, of LaGrange, being chosen for a three-year term. Because of an error in last year's election of executive committee members the other two members were assigned one and two-year terms by lot. These are J. M. Gooden, of Perry, Ga., who will serve two more years, and Ralph Newton, of Waycross, who will continue in office one more year.

The program for the meeting tonight included music by the Savannah high school orchestra and glee club and a dinner by Dr. W. D. Daniel, head of the English department of Clemson College, S. C.

Guy Wells, president of the Georgia Education Association, spoke briefly on four things he considered essential for the welfare of schools. These were, first, teachers must be fair and honest with patrons of the schools; second, business-like, and economical; third, research in school work, in which national interpretation through such meetings as now in progress, and fourth, that "we as superintendents keep alive the sparks of professional loyalty and courage."

Needed Changes Outlined. Ralph Newton, superintendent of Waycross city schools, told the state school superintendents that the primary legislative need of the schools is a constitutional convention to provide opportunity for thorough revision of the state government.

In case of the complete revision of the government system, Newton said "then certainly we should have a thorough revision of the state tax system which should include any allocation of funds for any purpose whatever."

In any case, he said, the school laws should be thoroughly revised. He listed primary points to be covered in the proposed school code revision.

"A new constitution," the Waycross superintendent said, "if rightly formulated would provide for a state system of schools and would secure us a thorough revision of the antiquated tax system. We do not at present have any state system of schools. What we are pleased to call a state system is simply a patchwork that has grown up during the years and out of various situations and has no central authority and no coordinated units."

He enumerated the following as necessary school code changes: 1. A state board of education properly constituted, with full power to set up a state system of schools and with full authority to administer the same, and working through an executive, the state superintendents of schools, who should be elected by the board without any restrictions except as to proper educational and professional training.

"2. County boards of education elected by the people, who shall in turn elect a county superintendent of schools without restriction except as to education and professional training and experience. Nothing else would go so far toward making this important position a school position instead of a political office, and nothing else would so tend to improve our county systems and consequently our rural schools."

"3. The five-mile restriction as to taxation for schools should be removed or the limit should be raised."

4. A revision, simplification and codification of all the school law of this state. At present there are so many contradictions and inconsistencies and resulting abuses that many difficult situations are created and many hardships are visited upon the schools.

"5. Ratification by the people at the next general election of the two amendments to the state constitution recently submitted by the legislature, namely the one relating to school districts to contract with each other for the tuition and transportation of pupils, and the other allowing bonded areas to be changed when it seems desirable to enlarge the bonded territory and when the people affected are willing to assume their part of the bonded debt."

"6. Adequate support of the state department of education so that an adequate and well-trained staff may be maintained to administer a real state system of schools, and also money enough in the hands of the department to subsidize and encourage advances in school facilities for community, such as libraries, etc."

"7. Repeal of the present law authorizing the governor to borrow for school purposes only, and permitting him to borrow for any and all purposes, thus removing from the public schools the burden of always being the bonus whenever there is a deficiency of revenue, and an impartial application of the principle of prorating appropriations for the payment of which there is not enough money in the treasury."

3 FOOTS BROTHERS ARE FOUND GUILTY. COVINGTON, Ga., Oct. 30.—(AP)—The jury in the case of J. C. Emmett and Albert Fouts yesterday returned a verdict of guilty with recommendation for mercy following their trial for criminal assault.

The three brothers, indicted by the grand jury in the September term of court, were tried jointly but received different sentences. J. C. was given from 2 to 12 years, Emmett from 8 to 15 and Charlie from 8 to 20 years. Their ages were given as 17, 19 and 21, respectively.

Noah Loyd and Albert Fouts, older brother of the three, were given 2 to 5 years and 10 to 20 years of the same charge of assault in the regular term of court in September.

Lord and Albert Fouts were tried separately in the regular session, but by special agreement the three younger Fouts boys were tried jointly. The crimes were committed during the latter part of August within a few days' time. It is believed that counsel for the Fouts boys are planning to appeal for new trials. Local interest was very keen concerning the outcome of these trials.

COUNTERFEITING PLOT AT AUGUSTA BARED

AUGUSTA, Ga., Oct. 30.—(AP)—Two Charleston, W. Va., men were charged with counterfeiting and a complete outfit for printing counterfeit money and bank notes was in custody of federal authorities here today.

William Green and W. H. Parker, both of Charleston, were arrested yesterday by government agents and city detectives. The officers said the counterfeiting equipment included plates for forging bank notes issued by the Exchange National bank of Albany, Ga.

Arraigned before United States Commissioner C. J. Skinner, J. Parker's bond was fixed at $10,000 and Green's at $5,000. Officers said Green, in a confession implicating Parker, said they had not had sufficient time to issue the bogus money before their arrest.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 30.—(AP)—The Atlantic Coast Line railroad has notified the naval stores section of the Savannah Board of Trade that the new terminal use charge recently decided upon by rail carriers with port facilities will be put into effect November 7.

The charge amounts to 5 cents per 100 pounds of goods hauled to or from railroad port terminals by trucks. The charge was suspended for two weeks. Naval stores shippers have expressed the fear the charge will result in diversion of trade to free ports.

Life of Thomas A. Edison

BY DAVID WILSON.

Chapter XIII.

Second Marriage and a Move.

Despite the 20 to 24-hour days habitual with Thomas Edison when he was working toward a definite goal he managed to find time for occasional vacation trips. Usually he managed them so they brought him in contact with scientists whose work had interested him.

As mentioned previously in this series, one of the skeptics who insisted on testing Edison's talking machine at the time of its invention was Bishop Vincent, a founder of Chautauqua. Through him Edison had come into contact with Lewis Miller, who shared credit for the Chautauqua with the bishop.

Miller was an inventor of some prominence, with his chief interest in agricultural implements. Edison found him a stimulating companion, and visited him several times at his home in the middle west.

There he met Miller's daughter, Mina, and found her perhaps even more of an inducement for visits than her father.

Weds Again.

In 1886, when Edison was 30, and had tried two years of sole custodianship of his three children, the eldest ten, he married Mina Miller. A woman of rare understanding, she appears to have been to him a perfect companion, whether sharing with him the joys of Europe or nursing him in his last illness.

With his marriage Edison determined to leave Menlo Park, N. J. For ten years it had been the center of his life. There he had grown to wealth and international recognition. There he had become the "wizard" of the talking machine and the electric light.

But Menlo Park lacked the opportunities for expansion and the conveniences Edison needed. His "invention factory" had outgrown itself; it required more modern quarters. Further, Edison appeared to feel that with his remarriage he was starting a new phase of life which should have new surroundings.

A century and a half before Edison's ancestors had come from Holland and settled in northern New Jersey, near the section now known as the Oranges. For his new, monumental group of laboratories and factories, Edison chose West Orange, near where his forebears had lived.

Five concrete buildings made up the plant at first, one 250 feet long and three stories high, the rest 100 by 25, and one story high. As the years went on the establishment grew.

New Home.

Within walking distance of the plant, Edison established his new home. He lived there until he died, except when he was at his Florida residence in the winter.

The Orange laboratories were dreams of perfection for an inventor. At Menlo Park Edison and his assistants had prided themselves upon being able to build anything and find anything anybody might need. At the new plant this was carried even farther. Edison had much more money to work with than when he set up his establishment at Menlo Park and he spent it wisely.

Laboratories and factories, machines and machine shops were combined into what is probably the best equipped place of its sort in the world.

In 1914 fire destroyed some of the most valuable equipment and books of Edison's collection, but the plant was rebuilt almost as it had been before. In all essentials, with due allowances for modernization, and the plant as Edison designed it in 1886 and 1887 was the plant in which he did his last work before he died.

Most of the plans for the establishment were drawn by Edison; he was an excellent, though non-technical, draftsman. Designing and supervising the Orange plant took a great deal of his time, but he managed to do valuable work in telephone and telegraphy and electric lighting, along with devising and patenting a new method of making plate glass and performing other minor feats of the sort.

Delayed Trip.

Edison hardly took time off for a honeymoon; the real wedding trip with the second Mrs. Edison did not come until 1889, when they went to the great Paris exposition, at which Edison's talking machine and electric lights and dynamos made up the most sensational exhibit.

France outdid herself to honor the visitors. Europe laid itself at the feet of the new-boy-telegrapher whose inventions were changing the world. The president of France gave the Edison's his opera box; leading statesmen and scientists of France, and later of Germany, vied each other to show honor.

Decorations came to the inventor from every side. He was kept so busy he scarcely had time to discuss problems of electricity with the scientists of Europe—the lure which had drawn him there in the first place.

He received the tributes graciously and gracefully, and left scores of good friends behind him. But he did not enjoy the trip. The honors made him self-conscious and the dinners gave him dyspepsia.

"They tried to put a sash on me," Edison said years afterward, referring to one of his French decorations, "but I could not stand for that. My wife told me wear the little red button, but when I saw Americans coming I would slip it out of my lapel. I thought they would jolly me for wearing it."

As to the dinners, Edison complained bitterly that he was forced to spend so much time eating that he had none left for the things he most wanted to do.

(Next: Edison, having given the world the talking machine to hear, and the electric light to see by, gives it the motion picture for its amusement.)

Studies Law in Prison,
Wins Case in New York

Opportunity is opportunity—even if it knocks on the grill iron door of the big gray building at the end of Boulevard, S. E.

So reasoned George Graham Rice, of New York, who combined a study of law with his term for fraud in federal prison here. While other convicts were "idling" their time away in listening to radio and exchanging prison gossip, he studied Blackstone.

Last night in New York, where he had gone to defend himself of income tax evasion, Rice argued his own case and won it. But he must return to Atlanta to finish the original four-year sentence, interrupted by the trial of the later charges.

ATLANTA, GA., OCT. 31, 1931.

A SIGNIFICANT VERDICT.

The grand jury of Fulton county emphasizes the truth of the situation as regards the dangers incident to the failure of prohibition enforcement, not only in Atlanta, but throughout the country.

The report is sweeping in its indictment and in its recommendation of a repeal of the 18th amendment and the substitution of "proper regulatory laws that will regulate definitely and strictly the sale of any intoxicating liquor."

The grand jury expresses its belief that the cause of temperance would be served in this manner, "whereas under the present prohibition laws we feel that a great deal of the results of educational work towards temperance have been lost since the passage of the 18th amendment."

The grand jury submitting these general presentations is as representative a body as could be selected from the citizenship of Fulton county. It included well-known men of every class, creed and civic competencies—men trusted in every circle of the social, business, labor and progressive life of the city. The solemn conclusions of such a body upon public affairs cannot fail to receive the frankest and fullest consideration of the thinking people of the community.

Of special interest in the presentations is the item which deals with the liquor problem as it exists in and flagrantly affects the life, law, order and common welfare of our people. It is the sorest subject that afflicts the community day and night—a fact sufficiently accentuated by the grand jury's statement that "at least 90 per cent of the cases brought before this grand jury had their inception in the illicit sale of spirituous liquors." And they say that the evidence before them establishes the fact that it is "impossible to stop the flow into Atlanta and the sale of illicit liquors."

The statement of Mayor Key characterizing prohibition enforcement a failure is thus corroborated by the careful, honest and faithful investigations of the grand jury.

Yet there are those who declare that the conditions as presented by the grand jury do not exist.

The findings of the grand jury are in line with the findings on the same subject of many grand juries over the nation. It is in accord with the conclusions of the more conspicuous members of the president's Wickersham commission; of the referendum taken by the American Bar Association; of the facts gathered in daily practice by the American Medical Association; and of the studies by the American Federation of Labor, in both prohibition and in present times.

But for saying that the national prohibition "experiment" is, after a dozen years of trial and experience, a failure of the results promised from it, men and women of high character and national respect have been subjected to bitter and unjust denunciation by extremists who shut their eyes to the real situation.

Here in Atlanta his church ostracized Mayor Key for expressing his honest judgment that prohibition enforcement is a failure. Now that this Fulton county grand jury has gone far beyond Mayor Key in exposing the fallacies of the situation, and say that they find that "cases having their inception in the illicit sale of liquor seem to cover all kinds of crime from petty larceny to murder," will they, too, be set upon for crucifixion?

If no other immediate good comes of the exposure of the grand jury, this one is outstanding—that we can have no reform and redemption of the aggravating present liquor lawlessness until the honest and patriotic leaders of the so-called dry and wet forces will agree to abandon untenable positions and get together for a wise and practicable solution of this increasingly malignant problem of national life and character.

DR. KLEIN'S ADDRESS.

Atlanta commercial and financial leaders have seldom had so good an opportunity to hear words of business wisdom as that of hearing the address of Dr. Julius Klein at the banquet to be given in his honor by the Presidents' Club at the Biltmore hotel Tuesday evening.

Coming at a time when the business of the country is just turning into an upward climb, the advice of this world-noted expert on trade conditions will be of invaluable benefit.

The depression from which we are emerging is not local to America but is worldwide in its dimensions. In order to properly adjust ourselves to the new conditions which we must soon face it is necessary, therefore, that we be guided to a large extent by changes taking place in the far corners of the earth.

Probably no man either in America or Europe has more profound knowledge of world business affairs than Dr. Klein, who as assistant secretary of commerce of the United States has kept in intimate touch with developments and conditions throughout the world.

Business leaders who have not already secured reservations for this outstanding event should communicate without loss of time with Colonel F. J. Paxon, chairman of the committee on arrangements. Reservations can be made through Monday.

OUR AUDITORIUM NEED.

One thing made plain by the meeting of the ecumenical conference is the great need of the city for a handsome, commodious and representative auditorium building. Doubtless during the conference Atlanta made a thousand apologies for housing that assemblage in the big, uncomfortable and unsightly barn that we dignify by the name of the "City Auditorium."

Whatever may have been its practical accommodations when it was erected the city's needs have immensely outgrown it and the building itself has depreciated in looks and comforts for public assembly purposes. Now its fitness is scarcely better than for boxing and wrestling rackets, for an automobile show or a display of farm products in season.

Atlanta, by reason of the exceptionally fine work of the convention and tourist bureau, by the publicity promotions of the senior and junior Chambers of Commerce, and by the general fame of the city throughout the country, has become one of the favorite and famous convention cities of North America. There is always an eagerness in great conventional bodies, fraternities and educational associations to accept an invitation to hold a session in Atlanta. There is not a huge and desirable delegated body in the Union that we might not draw to the city if we had a public auditorium befitting the fame of our people for culture and hospitality.

We could not be better served in a civic way than to organize a "City Auditorium Club," enroll in it 100,000 of our citizens, and make its business to bring pressure upon our city authorities to fill speedily this urgent need in our municipal equipment. The people feel more than ever the need for it and the ways and means to get it should be made the objective of a strong and undeniable popular demand.

If the fertilizer men are real friends of the farmer they will call their higher power salaried men of him.

The western republican members of the house are not crazy to have an eastern member for speaker. They seem to be fed up on that brand.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

D'Annunzio.

I once asked an Italian peasant from what part of the country he hailed. The fellow struck an attitude and thumping his chest replied: "Sono del paese di Gabriele D'Annunzio!" (I come from the country of Gabriele D'Annunzio). This might show with what respect if not veneration the poet is looked upon in his own country. A recent biography goes a long way to make it clear to what the poet owes this extraordinary popularity. It is not his literary work, marvelous though it may be, but rather the amazing stunts and performances he pulled off in his day.

D'Annunzio was already one of the major literary figures of Europe when the war broke out. The glory of letters did not suffice. He had to throw himself into the fray with all the impetuosity of his fiery character. He might easily have become a grotesque caricature of the hero, but in war he also landed on his feet and his record is one of the most astonishingly heroic. Of his little more than a year's disappearance from the limelight. For a time he dreamed of founding a jolly jingo-state in Fiume and succeeded in thoroughly expatriating the President Wilson, but politics bored Gabriele and he abandoned his attempt to frame an ultra-modern constitution. Of his love life little more than a few scraps are known. He was married to a woman who was responsible for the tragedy of the Duse and he is also who turned Lisa Rubinstein from a carefree, light-colored woman into a somber-souled tragedienne.

Health Talks

PROLONGED HOT SALT BATH FOR INFECTION.

The patient has had some slight, perhaps unnoticed injury of the extremities. He has either neglected it or given it improper treatment, perhaps laboring under the common misapprehension that anything purporting to be "antiseptic" or "healing" is all right. Such a minor injury, after a few days the hand, foot, arm or leg begins to swell, pain, throbs. Now what to do?

These symptoms spell infection, that is, invasion of the injured tissue by the germs of septicemia or "blood poisoning." These are the common words for such a condition as Streplococcus and Streptococcus strains, which are normally present on the surface of every skin.

If actual septicemia or "blood poisoning" occurs, it manifests itself in chills or chills sensations, general malaise or weakness, much like the symptoms one feels when coming down with a cold. It is not a "grippe" or "flu" or any acute respiratory infection. The best treatment for septicemia depends on the diagnosis. Whether to make one or several incisions at once, or of course under general anesthesia, to establish free drainage or give vent to the dangerous pus germs and their products, or to use a hot salt water bath while to see what nature will do with intelligent aid, is a problem which taxes the skill and courage of the doctor. That it is good to use a hot salt water bath is a fact. To use a hot salt water bath is a fact. To use a hot salt water bath is a fact.

While Irene Rich was announcing that her divorce from her husband, David Blankenhorn, sued her.

Miss Rich had nothing further to say about the matter today, but then, she had been asked to appear in court to handle matters in a charming, well-bred fashion.

Constance Bennett's picture, "Lady With a Past," will have to be held up until a new leading man is found to replace Robert Williams, who was operated on for appendicitis. This is the latest in a series of unfortunate accidents which have befallen the picture, which is reported to be getting along nicely, it means he will be away from the screen for some time.

Gary Cooper is another favorite who won't be seen in the movies for at least a year, if current reports are correct.

FULTON JURORS FAVOR REPEAL

prohibiting exposure in show-windows of pistols for sale.

3—Issuance of bonds for improving the existing facilities of the county schools.

4—Increase of trials of criminal cases at least until trials and handling of cases equaled the number of jurors.

5—Enactment of a bill which would alter and amend the laws relating to practice and procedure in criminal cases so as to expedite the trial of cases in the courts and eliminate unnecessary technicalities.

6—Adoption of a proper building code for the county.

7—Correction of traffic violations.

8—Regulations requiring second-hand auto shops to report to proper authorities the purchase of automobiles.

9—Concentration of the county convicts, almshouses and other institutions through exchange of North Georgia for the tract in the southwest section of the county.

10—Erection of a modern juvenile detention home for the juvenile court.

The presentations were delivered by Judge John D. Humphries by the following members of the grand jury: Julian V. Boehm, foreman; Howard S. Secretary; S. W. Mangham, assistant secretary; J. T. Settle, John J. Vogel, W. J. Crosswell, H. A. Johnson, H. F. Hoyt, C. E. Green, M. H. Nance, C. E. Flowers, C. V. Logan, G. K. Selden and W. T. Peterson.

In expressing to the grand jury the thanks of the court for the jury's splendid work during the term, Judge Humphries urged a scientific survey of the county for a tract in the southwest section of the county so as to eliminate "an appalling amount of lost motion."

The judges and solicitors are powerless to do anything about lost motion in the courts, Judge Humphries said. He recalled that at one time the judges of the state met in convention and adopted a rule of procedure, but a member of the legislature got busy and obtained passage of a law taking this right from the judges.

Archaeological System.

Unreliable features of the old archaeological system under which the courts of the county have been operating were pointed out by Judge Humphries. Lawyers are able to do too much talking to the jury, he declared, pointing to a witness who was attorney General Edmore than two hours to discuss a

LOOKING AND LISTENING

BY SAM W. SMALL.

A Few Things for the Information of Those Who Like My Style.

It is a matter of profound regret to me that my physical condition for nearly two months has kept me a "prisoner of hope" in a narrow room at Blackman's Health Resort or in Veterans' Hospital No. 48, and forbidding either work or outside engagements.

In that time I have received small letters from known and unknown friends in and outside of Atlanta, a king of many thanks for my information which it would be a delight to render, if I were not house-bound, hog-tied, and almost hourly threatened by doctors and nurses for doing work that they say I should absolutely omit.

But my good friends outside do not understand the situation. They think that I am only sick when I fail to show up in this column daily. They have the lovely notion, which I wish were true, that writing this column is all that I have to do.

No, beloved friends, the writing of this vagrant and variegated "Looking and Listening" scrapbook is the least part of my job—and that's no joke.

I like to write it when I have the leisure and the inspiration to emit a few comments or conclusions. I could not do it when I am in the hospital, I assure them, but the hardest thing about it is the effort to make it interesting to myself.

I could not do it in an easy chair and dictate it to a stenographer, or typist, it might be an easy recreation to me, but I cannot do that. I am one of the old-fashioned gold diggers who has brought up "by hand," so to speak. I have a sheaf of unrolled "copy paper" before me, a pencil in my fingers, and an eye practiced to catch the words of my thoughts running off the pencil point as it travels rapidly over the page. I abominate a typewriter machine.

The Quest for Information.

The average person would be amazed by the number of inquiries for information that come daily to an editorial desk.

When a man or woman falls into doubt on some subject it seems instinctive with them to write "to the editor" and ask him to put them up to the answer.

Well, it is always a pleasure to meet the confident questions of such persons—either to tell them the facts or direct them where to find them, but of late the greatest part of the time for such courtesies. My work, like that of some women, "is never done."

No sooner has he finished off his "batch of stuff" for the coming out of the paper, but the next one must already be partly on the way.

And about the most difficult job any man can have is that of finding the hundreds of subjects and thousands of facts that go into a single issue of a paper like The Constitution. Thousands of ambitious persons who thought it easy to have tried to do it before they were out of their first pencil!

Don't Shoot! I'm Doing My Best.

I have stacks and piles of letters and requests for the treatment of special subjects in this little special department.

Most of them, of course, I cannot answer because they are not of general interest. Some, however, are of personal interest to me and I am glad to be included in a column of general comment such as this is designed to be.

Some of the questions put up to me are diverting enough for an oral conversation, but they would be out of place if discussed in a column like this. I do hope the friends of The Constitution will not think me either unphish or churlish when I do not respond to their requests as they would like.

Sometimes, from my bed in a sick room I will do my best to "carry on" in the intent of this column, which is to amuse and inform.

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

BY MOLLIE MERRICK.

Correct. But after that he will without doubt swing back into the popularity he worked so hard to gain in the last summer. The last summer, in 1930, 577 indictments were returned and for the same period in 1931, 729 indictments were returned, an increase of 146 or an increase of 25 per cent. We are told that at the last session of the grand jury, the superior court criminal division there were 126 untried criminal cases in jail, including 25 murder cases and 101 cases of lesser crimes. The grand jury in 1931, in the jail is described in Section No. 15 of these presentations.

It is our recommendation that the grand jury should be increased to 12, taken to provide for increase of trials of criminal cases at least until the trials and handling of cases equal the number of jurors.

Procedure in Criminal Cases.

No. 6—On account of the large increase in criminal cases in all of the courts of this state, and especially in the superior court, it is recommended that the grand jury be increased to 12, taken to provide for increase of trials of criminal cases at least until the trials and handling of cases equal the number of jurors.

No. 7—It has been called to our attention that buildings, some of them housing many families, are being built in Fulton county in such a manner that they are a fire hazard to the occupants, and it is the recommendation of this grand jury that a proper building code modeled after the standard building code of various cities be adopted for all buildings in Fulton county to be built with more than three apartments and to house more than three families, and that arrangements be made for building permits to be secured for such buildings and for inspection to see that the code is followed together with authority to stop the erection of the building on any violation of the code.

The requirements of the code, in so far as the code, in case of fire, to apply to existing buildings within a reasonable time after the adoption of the code.

No. 8—It has been noticed by members of this grand jury that there is a fairly general disregard of traffic laws in Atlanta. Probably the most general cause of this is the question of parking automobiles on the public streets without lights at night. Such a condition creates a hazard to the safety of the public and it is recommended that a law be enacted that cars are usually parked in dark places. It is noticed that many people are using the public streets for an "all-night garage." This is a condition which is a hazard to the safety of the public and it is recommended that a law be enacted that cars are usually parked in dark places.

Stolen Automobiles.

No. 9—Whereas the statement has been made by this jury by Officer Sam Smith, regarding stolen automobiles, that 80 to 90 per cent of all cars stolen were for the purpose of joy riding and for selling parts from cars stolen. We, therefore, recommend that all second-hand auto shops and repair shops be required to report to the proper authorities of purchases of these automobiles parts. We wish to commend Officer Sam Smith for his diligence in handling stolen automobiles cases.

No. 10—This being the fall term of the court, in compliance with the provision of Section 876 of the penal code, the compensation of both grand and petit jurors at $3 per day.

No. 11—We wish to commend the county commissioners for their place in the young misdemeanor prisoners in separate camps from the older and felony prisoners, and recommend that, should it become necessary, that should include the young misdemeanor prisoners in the same camp.

No. 12—We wish to commend the county commissioners for their place in the young misdemeanor prisoners in separate camps from the older and felony prisoners, and recommend that, should it become necessary, that should include the young misdemeanor prisoners in the same camp.

No. 13—The Fulton county jail was found to be very much overcrowded, owing to the increase of crime (murder, burglary, robbery and larceny). The courts apprehend that at this time, unable to try cases fast enough to overcome the condition. We tabulate as follows:

ELLIS, SMITH CASE APPROACHING JURY

Government Rests in Trial of Two Alleged Bunco Men.

Featured by an attempt to exclude from evidence a letter on which is based an indictment charging use of the mails to defraud, the trial of Ed O. Ellis and W. Clyde Smith, in federal district court, was recessed Friday, with the government resting its case. The hearing was continued until 10:30 o'clock Monday morning.

The letter on which the indictment is drawn is a bill of credit alleged to have been sent through the mails from the Third National bank at Columbus to the Citizens & Southern bank here giving Roy E. Martin, Columbus theater magnate, credit for $30,000, which the government contends was used to place in bets on phony race track tips. The scheme, according to Martin's testimony, cost him $30,000 in a series of bets, which he said were engineered by Ellis and Smith.

Attorneys for the defense sought to have this letter excluded from the evidence on the grounds that no sufficient proof had been offered showing that it had come through the mails. Judge E. Marvin Underwood excused the jury until Monday and heard arguments concerning the exclusion of the letter. He will announce Monday morning whether the letter will be admitted as evidence.

Friday's session saw but two witnesses placed on the stand, John J. Durfield, also named in the indictment with Ellis and Smith, who is said to have confessed to his part in the alleged bunco scheme as a "steerer," and Herbert Graham, a postal inspector. The former again corroborated Martin's testimony of Thursday concerning the alleged betting

Grim Opera 'Elektra' Sung in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 30.—(AP)—"Elektra," the grim music drama of Richard Strauss and Hugo Von Hofmannsthal, has been revived in America.

After 21 years the opera was presented last night by the Philadelphia Opera Company, which offered it for the first time in original German in America. Ann Roselle sang the title role.

swindle, and Graham testified concerning the arrest of Ellis.

With the government's side of the case closed by Assistant District Attorney Hal Lindsay, it is expected that the defense will close its argument early Monday without placing Ellis or Smith on the witness stand, and that the case will be in the hands of the jury before noon.

JOHNSON URGES HOOVER DEFEAT

country, so far as the present administration could involve us, has been finally rejected, "juggled" into the League of Nations.

"It is pretended, of course, that we sacrifice nothing of our independence, but when you sit in an official body as part of it and participate in its proceedings, you are in honor bound to see it through.

"It was not necessary for us to join the League of Nations to write an individual note to Japan about the Kellogg piffle pact.

"There is no real war in the orient, because you can't have war between a chopstick and a machine gun.

"Japan, violating every treaty designed to promote peace, has with the strong arm taken part of Manchuria, and what Japan takes she keeps.

"The administration acting for international bankers seizes upon the occasion to rush us into the League of Nations—the league rejected by the United States senate and at the polls repudiated by the American people.

"The act of the administration takes us into Europe's political controversies and is in violation of the constitution, and in defiance of the people's will."

ing American bankers, governmental heads close to these affairs, and at least one international financier, M. Ennst Francis of Belgium, who held an overnight guest at the White House.

Small List.

Today, however, his engagement list was unusually small, only a few besides members of his cabinet being permitted to enter his office. But there was a scheduled conference, late in the day, with Eugene Meyer, governor of the federal reserve board, and one of the president's closest advisers.

Both of them are keeping close watch on progress of organization of the National Credit Corporation. Their expectation is that it soon will be ready to start functioning on an extended scale.

Only in the last few days it was revealed the president is sure the $500,000,000 fund sought is soon to be subscribed. The credit pool, filled by private agencies and help banks by enabling them to rediscount securities ineligible for such action by the federal reserve system.

The report of the federal reserve board for the week ending October 28 showed that money in circulation in the United States was $5,480,000,000, a decrease of $24,000,000 in one week. It was the first drop in the circulation since August 3, when there was a decline of $5,000,000.

The total, however, left the circulation $1,054,000,000 greater than a year ago. Officials said this showed that more than $1,000,000,000 in money was being hoarded in the United States.

This opinion was based upon the assertion that there was no cause for greater circulation of money at this time than there was a year ago.

The decrease was the first indication that there had been a slowing up in the hoarding of money, which had been hoped for since the announcement of the National Credit Corporation.

Since last September 16, the United States has lost $728,000,000 in gold. On that date it held a total of $5,015,000,000, the largest amount ever held by a single country. Since then, the world total of $11,275,000,000, was checked last week when only $49,000,000 was withdrawn from this country's total stock amounting to $4,287,000,000. This was $246,000,000 less than held a year ago.

The withdrawal of gold, however, has not caused any alarm among officials who have pointed out that central banks of Europe turned their credit to gold after some European nations had abandoned the gold standard to bolster up their own financial positions. Much of the gold withdrawn from the United States has not been shipped abroad but held in vaults in this country earmarked for the foreign accounts.

FARM PRICES SHOW SIGNS OF REVERSING MOVEMENT

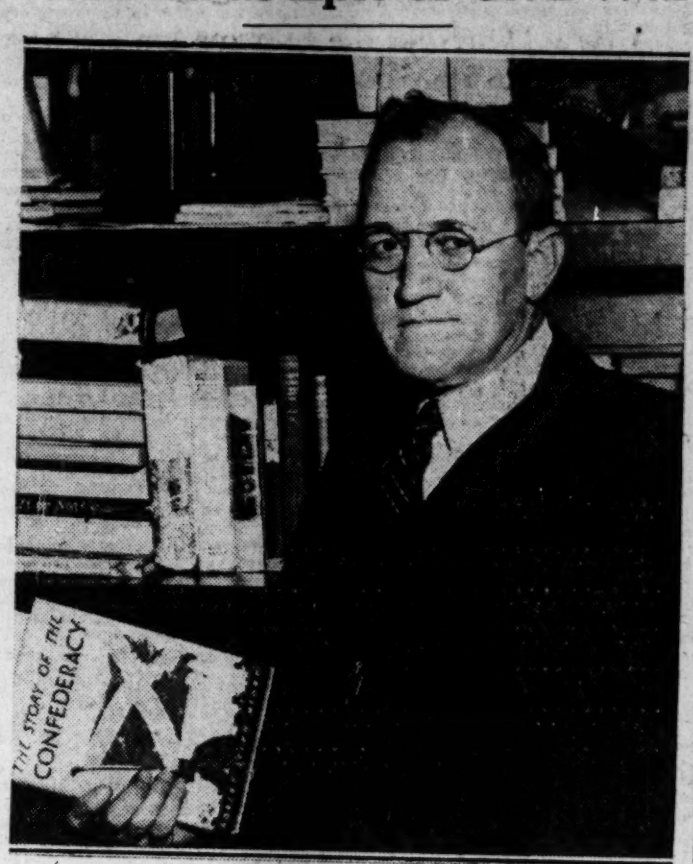

If recent gains are held, the agriculture department's index of farm prices will reverse the field and start toward higher levels next month.

Increases of approximately 13 cents a bushel for wheat and a cent and a half a pound for cotton came too late to be recorded in this month's index, which on October 15 stood at 68. A year ago it was 105.

On October 15, the farm wheat price was 36.1 cents as compared with 35.7 in September and 35.4 in August. Dairy and poultry products, the best situated of all agricultural lines, continued to advance, rising from an average of 93 to 95.

Millions of dollars have been added in the last two weeks to the farm value of wheat and cotton. If half of the 1931 wheat crop still remains on farms, its value has been enhanced by more than $50,000,000. Market

Tennesseean's New History Hailed as Epic of Civil War

ROBERT SELPH HENRY.

BY WILLIAM O. KEY JR.

Because of all the thousands of volumes that have been written concerning the cause, the upheaval and the result of the epic bid for independence made by the south in 1861-64 contained no truly connected history of the publishing firm of Bobbs Merrill, who has recently published what critics hail as the most thorough story of the Confederacy.

And this is the title of the book—"The Story of the Confederacy." The author is Robert Selph Henry, a quiet, modest type of man, who was graduated from Vanderbilt University in 1911 and who worked on his massive volume in what hours of leisure he could snatch from his duties as assistant to the vice president of the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis railway. The writing alone required more than a year's painstaking work.

Friday Mr. Henry was guest of the book department of Davidson-Paxon Company and of Rich's Bookshop, where he was greeted by leaders in Atlanta literary circles.

Saw Need for History.

Asked his incentive for undertaking so tedious a task as compiling a chronicle and concrete history, the author explained:

"I knew there was a need for such a book. I had read the books dealing with that great subject which I had read, not one of them presented a clear, concise, and at the same time thorough story of the causes and motives that threw the people of the south into the great American tragedy of history. I wanted to write a book that would be understood by the ordinary reader—to present to him a knowledge of why the south fought and how. It must be emphasized that the south clung to the constitution as it was written, while the north, not understanding to change the covenant, did change the interpretation of it."

estimates have placed the gain in cotton at more than $50,000,000.

The encouraging factors, however, have been somewhat tempered by recent recessions in live stock, fruit and vegetable prices.

PRESIDENT BEGINS 'WAR' ON ACCUSERS IN NAVY LEAGUE

never officially been divulged in their entirety."

The secretary of state asserted that "even imperfectly informed gentlemen must be aware" of this nature.

He placed in the same category another statement in the league pamphlet, one saying that records of this and the London navy treaty negotiations had been refused the senate even in executive session.

On the contrary, Stimson asserted, every member of the senate foreign relations committee had full access to the records provided they be withheld from the newspapers. He received them from Senator Reed, republican of Pennsylvania, a delegate to the conference, under just such an agreement, he said.

Laid Aside.

As a parting shot, Stimson said he had laid Gardner's statement aside as unworthy of notice after reading this one section.

During all this, Gardner remained silent. He has been a member of the Navy League since 1921, and its president since 1928, succeeding Walter Bruce Howe. He planned to go tonight to New York.

Gardner's difference with the administration over the size and strength of the navy is by no means the league's first tiff with government officials. In fact, during the time of Josephus Daniels as secretary of the navy, members of the league were forbidden to enter the precincts of any navy yard or station.

When the late Secretary Denby succeeded Daniels, he cancelled this order. He had been a member of the league himself. So, too, was Theodore Roosevelt Jr., now governor of Porto Rico.

The present secretary of the navy thus far has remained aloof from the tiff between Mr. Hoover and the league. Emerging from the regular Friday cabinet meeting today, Mr. Adams said he had "no comment to make," and, in fact, had not read the league's claims.

No Apology Hint.

Thus far, Gardner has given no hint that he would apologize to the president. His only statement since he was appointed committee, rather than congress, would welcome a congressional inquiry.

Gardner is a native of Boston, having graduated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and later engaged in business as an electrical engineer and an associate of Henry L. Doherty in the public utilities field. He later retired from business to write.

For the most part, members of congress looked on the Hoover-navy dispute in silence. There were some who expressed the view privately that Mr. Hoover was unwise in making an issue with a single individual.

Senator Pease, of Ohio, chairman of the republican national committee, said:

"For 20 years I have stood for an adequate navy, just as much so today as ever. My understanding is that the president will not be satisfied with anything short of an adequate navy. These self-appointed propagandists make it quite embarrassing for the legislator to support an adequate program. However, he must do it in spite of the propagandists."

does pass on the case. The ex-councilman's case is now before the prison commission, a respite having been granted Saunders in order that the commission may study his case, the governor pointed out. Governor Russell expressed appreciation of the work of the Fulton grand jury.

Three members of the jury which indicted Saunders were on the grand jury which called on Governor Russell. These were Ed R. Hayes, H. A. Brockman and Lucien Harris. Foreman Boehm and others of the September-October term jury had served on the grand jury during various phases of the graft investigation. Mr. Harris joined Mr. Boehm in the appeal of the jury for the governor to allow Saunders to serve his sentence. Mr. Harris told of the long hours and hard work put in by the grand jury on the graft cases, and spoke of the vast amount of corruption and graft uncovered by the investigation.

Virginia Apples are better for eating and cooking, too

"Why are these Virginia Apples so much heavier and juicier—why have they such marvelous flavor?" It's all because conditions exist in Virginia for growing apples that are not found in the North or West.

You know, Nature is mighty lavish with her gifts, and she sorters fits each section for growing certain fruits. To Florida she gives the perfect conditions for growing oranges and grapefruit; to the west coast the things that make for perfect pears, plums, grapes and cherries. To Virginia she gave the soil and climate that produces apples with "supremacy."

Virginia orchards enjoy more sun-drenched days than those in the North and West, and apples need a long time

MORE than 200 thrillingly delicious dishes can be made with Virginia Apples: puddings, pies, cakes, jelly, tarts, toasts, salads, egg-nogs, chutneys, custards, flamingoes, floas, flummeries, and other Epicurean delights. How to make them is told in the Virginia Apple Cook Book.

DECATUR OFFICER IS HELD IN SLAYING AFTER STILL RAID

Anna Davis and a negro boy by the name of Joe Smith, both found in a near-by farm house, were also taken into custody. Mrs. Davis is said to own the land upon which the still was located.

Smith, the dead man, is understood to have a wife and several children, but they had not been located Friday night. Smith was also reported by officers to have a long history of crime, and that a reward was out for his capture.

Decatur Chief of Police Swords said that Carroll had not been suspended and that he was on duty last night as usual.

If Carroll is bound over for murder Monday he will probably spend several weeks in jail inasmuch as the Rockdale grand jury meets next on the third Monday in January.

U. S. AGENTS NOT TO BLAME

H. P. WRIGHT DECLARES

Deputy Prohibition Administrator H. P. Wright Friday afternoon declared that the government men had nothing to do with the killing of a man near Conyers Thursday night, but that county officers from DeKalb were solely responsible.

Marshall Louis H. Crawford, Deputy Marshal A. C. Sowell and Prohibition Agents F. B. Clark and D. L. Floyd were near the scene of the shooting, raising a still, said Mr. Wright. "The government men were after a still and they met Officer Walter Carroll and Investigator Johnnie Jones on the highway purely by chance. The latter stated they were after a fugitive. It just so happened that the fugitive and still were at the same place. The man ran from the house and Carroll chased him. That is all that the government men know other than that later when searching for Carroll they found him and the fugitive who had been shot."

Mr. Clark and Assistant District Attorney J. M. Johnson went to Conyers today to attend an inquest," he continued, "and all they went for was to testify about the man running away. We were not after the man, nor did we know his name even. Our department sent representatives to Conyers because we do not feel it fair to run out against leave the DeKalb officers in the middle of a pond, so to speak."

JAPAN'S CITIZENS BACK GOVERNMENT

Manchurians Seek To Rid Selves of Last Vestiges of Nationalist Rule.

TOKYO, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Patriotic organizations throughout Japan were organizing public opinion today in support of the government's Manchurian policy, while dispatches from Mukden told of the start of a Manchurian military campaign to drive the last vestiges of the nationalist Chinese regime out of southern Manchuria.

The outlook for early solution of the situation resulting from an armed clash September 18 near Mukden between Chinese soldiers and Japanese railway guards was not considered hopeful.

Officials frankly admitted evacuation of the occupied zones of southern Manchuria by November 16, the date set by the League of Nations, was most improbable.

They declared the Chinese had not given any indication of being able to organize responsible local governments in Manchuria. Reorganization of the Nationalist government was delayed by efforts at direct negotiations between the republic and Japan.

With diplomatic stalemated temporarily, the report of a new Manchurian military campaign to drive the last vestiges of the nationalist Chinese regime out of southern Manchuria was received with interest.

Troops of General Chang Hsueh-chang, former subordinate of Governor Chang Hsueh-liang, of Manchuria, backed by troops of General Ling Yin-ching, veteran Manchurian official, crossed the River Liao to attack the remaining forces of Governor Chang, which retreated immediately toward great wall.

Chang Hsueh-chang was said to have 6,000 men in his command. General Ling, who has been a consistent political enemy of Governor Chang, has been gathering an army for nearly a month, with headquarters at Panshanhien.

Coal dumpings of Chesapeake and Ohio railway at Newport News, Va., were officially reported as 5 per cent higher during first three weeks of October, with railroads and port movements benefiting.

Several small banks in tobacco sections of Virginia which suspended with announcement of low prices have reopened.

A new apple cold storage plant with 75,000-bushel capacity has been built at Tallulah Lodge, Ga.

The new 4,000-car terminal and freight yard on the Industrial canal, New Orleans, will be ready for use by February 1.

Installation of the Port of New Orleans' $1,500,000 automatic sprinkler system has been completed.

Texokolo Pecan Shellers, Inc., a new Memphis industry, employs 500 workers following doubling of plant capacity.

Collections in Macon are more than 5 per cent in advance of those of last fall, and credit men say Macon is 10 per cent ahead of the national average.

Grocery Business Good.

Atlanta grocery firms report peak business, normal wage level and increased employment.

Numerous county agents in Georgia say conditions are good.

F. C. Chandler, Houston county agent, says farmers are more cheerful, winter food supplies are adequate and fertilizer collections are good.

The hog crop alone will pay the county taxes in another year, he said.

Wilcox county farmers are reported optimistic, working hard and looking toward next year. Food products are adequate.

"Unusually heartening" agriculture prospects for 1932 are reported in counties around Valdosta and tobacco growers will aim to improve quality.

Helen Hayes Contest Closes; Winners To Be Known Sunday

The "Who Is Helen Hayes?" contest closed at midnight and this morning the judges were pouring over the hundreds of letters received from Atlanta theatergoers in their attempt to determine who are the prize winners. The three prize winners will be announced Sunday morning.

Miss Hayes' first talkie will appear at the Fox today. It is "The Sin of Madelon Claudet" and in it she stars plays six different roles and is supported by Neil Hamilton and Lewis Stone.

Of the hundreds of letters received by the Theater Critic of The Constitution, who is conducting the contest in co-operation with the management of the Fox theater, about 90 per cent were written by women, showing that the women are deeply interested in the forthcoming Hayes picture.

The letters reveal that:

Helen Hayes Brown was born at Washington on October 10, 1900.

She is the wife of Charles Mac-

Arthur, playwright, and the mother of the "Act of God" baby.

She is five feet tall, weighs 90 pounds and has brown hair, blue eyes and wears shoes that cost $30 a pair.

She made her stage debut at the age of 7 and first appeared on Broadway in 1909 with Lew Fields, Vernon Castle and Johnny Bunny in "Old Dutch."

"The Sin of Madelon Claudet" is not her first picture. She did a bit for Vitaphone in the "old days."

She doesn't care much about clothes but often makes her own dress and hat.

She is often troubled by insomnia. She knocks on wood for good luck.

She plays auction bridge.

She seldom eats breakfast and has a special liking for chop suey and spaghetti.

She believes in fortune tellers.

She hates a telephone, and

She never wears a wedding ring.

Drama and Comedy Hold Interest As Theaters Offer New Programs

One of the most remarkable screen productions of all time, "The Sin of Madelon Claudet," makes its bow to an Atlanta audience at the Fox theater this morning. With Helen Hayes, perhaps the greatest actress of the day on the legitimate stage, filling the title role for her first contribution to the screen, the production is one that will be the talk of the city within a very few days and will remain the talk of Atlanta's drawing rooms, parlors, offices and workshops for many months to come.

It is a daring story of maternal sacrifice and the story of a woman who calls for at least six entirely different make-ups, as the woman grows older as the story progresses. It is a story told in its superficial aspect, in many spots, but with a beauty of idea and nobility of theme that morning at Atlanta's greatest theater, at the corner of Peachtree and Ponce de Leon.

The supporting cast includes Lewis Stone, Jean Hersholt, Neil Hamilton, Charles Edwards, Robert Young, etc., and the director is Edgar Selwyn.

On the stage the Fox offers for the week beginning today, the "North, South, East, West" idea, with clever principals and a larger than usual chorus of better looking than usual Sun-kissed Beauties. Enrico Leide conducting the orchestra. Al Evans at the organ, another Columbia football subject and some splendid short pictures complete the new program that opens this morning at Atlanta's greatest theater, at the corner of Peachtree and Ponce de Leon.

The feature roles are cast among some of filmdom's brightest stars. Kay Francis and Lilian Tashman are the feminine leads, with Eugene Pallette and Joel McCrea sharing honors in the male leads.

Headlining the four acts of vaudeville, is His Royal Majesty, "The King of Hokus," Ben Blue, a comedy dancer. Mr. Blue not only does his own act, but with the other artists on the bill, present a miniature musical comedy, entitled "A Kingdom for Sale."

On this bill is another dancing act composed of Lewis and Altee, buck dancers of the rarest ability. The lars are well stocked.

Turner county farmers are overcoming a dry season with a "cow, hog, hen" program, and Sumpter county is looking forward to a good new year.

Ben Hill residents are storing meat and other foods. Washington county has adequate food, and an abundance of food crops are being stored in Taylor county.

Pulaski crops are good. Peach is working hard, and melons helped pay the debts in Thomas.

Tift has a 14-point farm plan; Jones reports plenty, and Twiggs farmers are active and far from being discouraged.

Colquitt county produced bumper crops, and leaders in other counties throughout the state are cheerful in their preparations for the future.

WITCHES HOLD SWAY ON HALLOWEEN

there was safety in numbers. And the most fun! In such a congregation, known as an old-fashioned Halloween party, nuts were cracked, popcorn popped, apples bobbed in a big tub of water, and ghost stories spun.

Of late, however, celebration of Halloween has undergone yet another metamorphosis; and while its observance has by no means abandoned the raucousness of the earlier period—on the contrary, it has increased in noise—it has given greater impetus to the party type of celebration.

Atlanta children and grown folks tonight will attend many functions held in observance of the night that once was fraught with mythical perils. Nowadays a good five-piece jazz orchestra and gaily-garbed young men and women serve to give a demonstration of witchcraft of a sort, while the kiddies go in for clown suits with scarred faces and dough-faces intended to terrify.

Other countries do it differently. In the north of England and in Scotland they take their Halloween seriously. It is the eve of the Feast of All Saints, he it known, and in that bleak, heathery land windows yet adorned with tightly and doors are battened, because it is a night for evil and mysterious deeds. And on the dreary moorlands of England, the fading, eerie light of the jack-o'-lanterns, on Halloween night they say this little poem:

There are lights on the fen,
Who have slain and have died,
And are living again,
O'er the marshes they tread
With their lanterns of dread;
And they peer in the pools—
In the pools of the dead!

SON TO CONTEST WILL OF EDISON

verbal picture today and declared himself "at a loss to explain" the action of his brother, William, who has announced he intends to sue to break the will of his father.

The oldest son of the great inventor, though he is among four of the six children bequeathed but a small part of the estate, said he believes the will is fair one. The will left the bulk of the estate to Charles and Theodore, sons by the second marriage.

Why not? Thomas A. Jr., asked, "Charles and Theodore stuck by father. They went to college and studied engineering so as to be able to help him in his work. They worked hard, conscientiously and both are very able. They started at the bottom in father's company and labored to the top through all the departments. They devoted all their spare time to the labor to which they contributed so much."

Mr. Edison married Miss Mary G. Stillwell in 1874. Marion was the first born. Thomas A. Jr. followed two years later. Then came William. He is now 51. Their mother died in 1884.

Two years later Mr. Edison married Miss Mina M. Miller, who survives him. The children of the second marriage, in order, were Madeline, now 42; Charles, now 40, and Theodore, now 38.

Following his second marriage, the inventor, his bride and Marion, Thomas and William moved from New York to Glenmont, N. J., where the Edison home has been maintained since. That was 45 years ago.

Marion was the first to leave home. She traveled to Europe in 1900, married a German army officer named Oer and settled in southern Germany. She returned to the United States five years ago and has since resided at Norwalk, Conn.

Thomas departed from the parental wing, but with parental blessings, at 21. He suffered chronic headaches and his father feared they were caused by work in the laboratory. He journeyed to Burlington, N. J., and there set up a small laboratory of his own, managing to keep himself in the open more than before. He is now a consulting engineer at East Orange.

William left at 23 to establish a poultry farm at Morristown, N. J. He was particularly interested in the raising of pheasants. Later he moved to Wilmington, Del., where he has lived since.

The second group of children remained at Glenmont until their marriages and then established homes nearby. Madeline became Mrs. John Eyre Sloane. Charles became president of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., holding company for Thomas A. Edison industries. Theodore became head of the research department for the same firm.

At Christmas time, year in and year out, all six children assembled at the Glenmont home, and exchanged gifts. Thomas said only illness succeeded in keeping any of them away, although Mrs. Oser missed a few Christmases because of the great distance at which she lived.

The inventor presided at the dinner and was always much pleased to have his children gathered about him. Mrs. Edison was "mother" to all of them. "I never saw any evidence of ill-feeling between the two sets of children," Thomas said today. "Nor were there any signs of unfriendliness toward the present Mrs. Edison on the part of my brother and sister."

"My stepmother has been very kind to me and I am very fond of her. She is just like another mother."

"Mrs. Edison was especially solicitous when I was ill. My relations with her children have been wonderful and I am very fond of them. Throughout my life there has never been anything but the most cordial relations between us."

But what has happened today is very disturbing. I cannot understand William's action. It is a flare-up that I am at a loss to explain.

"Our different ideas and our fixed plans on life, coupled with the fact that we were separated by many years, made it difficult—almost impossible—for us to be companions. However, there was a strong bond of friendship and love between us at all times."

At the time of his father's death Thomas was at the sickbed of his wife, who had pneumonia, and who was at that time not expected to live. "I loved my father too much ever to question his will," he concluded.

Charles Edison listened to the news of his half-brother's intended action very gravely and said "Thank you, very much." Theodore would make no comment. Mrs. Sloane said she was taking no part in the proposed contest.

Charles affirmed that his mother had been provided for with "the utmost generosity" before his father's death, but denied published reports she had great wealth.

Penn, Cornell and Yale Favorites in Big Eastern Games Today

OREGON PRIMED TO GIVE VIOLETS REAL STRUGGLE

Notre Dame, Michigan Expect Easy Victories in Intersectional Tilts.

By Walter Trumbull.

(Copyright, 1931, for The Constitution by the Associated Press.)
NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—There are a number of football games in the east this Saturday which, before the teams take the field, look like pretty even contests. Among these are the meetings between Cornell and Columbia, Pennsylvania and Lafayette, Holy Cross and Brown, Syracuse and Michigan State, Rutgers and Delaware, and Bucknell and Villanova.

In the ordinary course of events the Cornell-Columbia game should be close. Cornell, with its well-balanced team, must be given the edge, but it would be no surprise to see Columbia win. Lou Little has built up a strong defense and even such backs as Viviano, Ferraro and Kline are no better than Hewitt and Montgomery. Dobie has great respect for the latter as a ball-carrier. Still, Cornell is the better bet.

Pennsylvania showed great power against Wisconsin, and Lafayette not only held Colgate to 16 points, but smothered Washington-Jefferson. If Penn wins this one, even Notre Dame might feel a bit apprehensive, and most of us believe Penn should win.

BROWN TO FIGHT.
Holy Cross did well against Fordham, but Brown will fight to retain its position among the unbeaten teams. Brown started the season with an inexperienced team, but it has steadily shown progress. Holy Cross will enter the game favorite, but may be in for a busy afternoon.

Syracuse, another unbeaten team, faces strong opposition in Michigan State. When Florida, beaten by Syracuse, trimmed Auburn last week, it made Vic Hanson's pupils look better than ever. But Army claims that Michigan State has a strong outfit. Syracuse looks a bit stronger, but will have to go at top speed to finish in front.

Rutgers should not find Delaware easy, and the Bucknell-Villanova game should be fiercely fought. Bucknell, with its powerful line, looks like the winner, but it will have to look out for passes.

IRISH TOO STRONG.
In the intersectional games Notre Dame appears too powerful for Carnegie Tech, and Michigan too strong for Princeton. Purdue beat Carnegie, and so did Washington-Jefferson. Playing as it did against Pittsburgh, Notre Dame should win by a sizable score.

It is hard to see that Princeton has a chance against Michigan. In the games lost to Brown, Cornell and Navy the Tigers scored a total of seven points. Michigan, on the other hand, found itself against Illinois, and might have a field day against Princeton.

The Yale-Dartmouth game is always a well-played contest, but this season the Blue appears to have far the stronger team. If Yale plays as well as it did against Army, and makes a bit better use of opportunities, it should win by a wide margin. In spite of the fact that Southern California defeated Oregon by a score of 53-0, New York University cannot afford to take this game too

All Ready for the Show

Jack King, riding Dapper Dan, one of the entries in the junior horse show, to be shown this afternoon at Lullwater Farms, is expected to be a strong contender for honors. The show is attracting a large entry list of junior riders.

Ole Miss Is Nosed By Marquette, 13-6

MARQUETTE STADIUM, MILWAUKEE, Oct. 30.—(P)—The University of Mississippi football team fumbled to defeat, 13 to 6, at the hands of Marquette University on a rain-soaked gridiron here tonight.

Marquette's two touchdowns came in the first half. Overconfidence never scored more touchdowns, and you must remember that Oregon beat Washington and will be in good shape for this contest. But New York looks better on paper, and should look better on the field.

Army, Navy, Colgate, Harvard and Pittsburgh should win easy victories. Williams should beat Union. Ursinus seems stronger than Gettysburg, and Fordham should have an easy afternoon. Trinity always gives its best for Wesleyan, but the latter's game with Amherst makes it look like a fine eleven. Georgetown seems a bit too good for Boston College.

mediately after Mississippi fumbled in its own territory.
The lone Mississippi score was made on the initial play when Kirk Haynes, right halfback, received the kickoff and ran 97 yards through the Marquette team to cross the goal line.

In the same period, Aspatore recovered a Mississippi fumble. Passes and plunges shored the ball over. The second Marquette touchdown followed a Mississippi scoring threat in the final period. Mississippi carried the ball to the 5-yard line, lost it on downs and Marquette punted out. Mississippi lost the ball on a fumble in midfield and a 40-yard pass, E. Rouhani to Becker, gave Marquette the game.

SCORES BY PERIOD:
Mississippi..... 6 0 0 0—6
Marquette..... 0 0 0 7—7
Mississippi scoring—Touchdown, Haynes.
Marquette scoring—Touchdown, E. Rouhani; point after touchdown, Sisk (sub for Patterson).

Smart Atlanta Sporting Event Is at Lullwater Farms Today.

The junior horse show, one of Atlanta's smartest sporting events, will get under way at 1 o'clock this afternoon at picturesque Lullwater Farms, the estate of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Candler, and through the 13 events on the program junior riders will hold the undivided attention of spectators, who will include relatives and friends.

Promptly at 1 o'clock the sharp, clear notes of a bugle will float through the crisp autumn air, announcing the first event.

Patronized by Atlanta's smart set, the show will embrace a very representative list of junior riders. A feature event will be Class 5, horsemanship under six years, in which Mary Trammell Scott, Dorothy Mae Ogden, Betty Jane Ogden, Clark Howell III, Travers Hill, Sally Prescott, Peter J. Manley Is Winner In Wrestling Bout

Winning two falls in a row, Bill Manley took the headline wrestling match on the Georgia Power Company Athletic and Social Club's October fight card last night from Whitey Patterson.

The timekeeper's gong stopped the bout between Jack McAdams and Ted Radcliff after each had secured one fall.

In the main boxing event, Battling Mike and Bennie Regin fought six rounds to a draw. Buddy and Tinney Oxford put on a three-round exhibition match.

The fight program was held at the club's gymnasium, 36 Piedmont avenue. The largest crowd of the season was present.

FORTY-SIX GAMES.
Babe Myers, of the Independence club, hit safely in 46 consecutive games.

Flaming 'Gator Sophs Seek To Balk Bulldogs

Boyhood Feuds Forgotten, Florida Youngsters Unite in Effort To Upset Georgia.

By Jack Troy.

Florida's flaming sophomores will play a big part against Georgia's revengeful seniors in today's home-coming game in the Fighting 'Gators' new stadium at Gainesville, Fla.

The flaming sophs aren't conceded much chance to win; neither were the 'Gators of 1929, nor were they expected to get a tie out of last year's game at Savannah. No, the flaming sophs are pretty much out on a limb, so far as the dopesters are concerned, but they will not go down without a hard fight. It's home-coming in 'Gatorland, and it's a very auspicious occasion down in the land of the palm (tree, mister) and the pines. Those pines sometimes whisper inspiring things to sons of the native soil.

Consider those flaming sophomores, undefeated in the south this year. Hughes, Fountain, Ferrazi, Buck, Trendgold and Davis, all sophomore backfield threats, have been roughly handled in all games this year, but they are ready to go against Georgia.

A striking thing about Florida's sophomores, with the exception of Ferrazi, who was directed to 'Gatorland from Chi by Lance Richbourg, former 'Gator and now a Boston Brave, is that they are Florida boys, rivals, most of them, in high school; but now united in a common cause.

Hughes and Buck, especially, were the deadliest of rivals, the former playing for Daytona Beach High school and latter for Palatka High. "Bullet" Buck is the ambidextrous young man you have read so much about, the very same who is making 'Gator fans forget "Canon Ball" Clyde Crabtree.

Hughes seems to have taken the fullback job away from Link Silsby, senior and a New Smyrna (Fla.) boy. If you consider prep rivalries, don't overlook that of Silsby and Hughes when they played against each other in high school. Daytona Beach and the Auburn game, 15 miles apart and the rivalry on the gridiron is one of those things, that's all.

Now Hughes has not only taken the fullback play away from Silsby, but is starring as well. He had come through the season with only minor injuries, when he suffered a bruised arm. But he's ready for today's battle. He was one of the brightest stars of the N. C. State, North Carolina, Syracuse and Auburn contests.

It was his touchdown and point after that swung the Auburn game to Florida, and against Syracuse he ran 35 yards off-tackle, in addition to numerous other shorter runs. He scored against North Carolina State.

"DOZEN TACKLERS."
Buck is the Florida back who shook off a "dozen tacklers" at Raleigh on a 75-yard run to a touchdown. So, it will be the flaming sophomores arrayed against the revenge-seeking seniors. Hark back to 1929. A then sophomore Georgia eleven, with a great record, invaded Jacksonville, Fla., to meet a senior Florida team. You know what happened.

Now a senior Georgia, embracing those same sophomores, is going after a sophomore Florida team like, you might say, nobody's affairs; yes, as an Englishman might say, an oversized Bulldog is going after a "toy" 'Gator with revenge as the motive.

If the annual game runs true to the form of recent years, Georgia's Bulldogs will leave the land of the waving palms and the whispering pines a sadder

BREAK of the DAY

TAPS FOR JIMMY MOORE.

Taps will be sounded for Jimmy Moore, the Alabama football star of 1930 who died at Anniston, Ala., last summer, before the Alabama-Kentucky game at Tuscaloosa today.

Moore was in the charity game in Atlanta in 1929 when the Scottish Rite Home for Crippled Children was the beneficiary. That game and the splendid spirit of the players is dear to Atlanta's memory.

Jake Harris, as one of the committee handling the game, announced Friday that the committee had forwarded the following telegram to newspapers in Alabama:

"The children of the Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children have learned that taps will be sounded Saturday for Jimmy Moore, who gave us his services on the football field in 1929 in our game. Your paper is the only means these little children have of letting the parents of Jimmy Moore know that they, whose weak legs are getting stronger because of Jimmy Moore's playing, cherish his memory."

That was a great game. It was a pity that it could not have gone on from year to year. There was a thrill in seeing the children and in knowing for what the men played—"strong legs, running that weak legs might be made to walk."

It is a fine thing for them to remember Jimmy Moore.

FREDDY AND BLINKY HERE.

Freddy Russell, the brilliant young sports editor of the Nashville Banner, and Blinky Horn, the equally able sports editor of The Tennessean, arrived last night with the Commodore football team. The Nashville boys bob up every year with some swell nicknames. When Vernon Close reported to Vanderbilt, Russell named him "Mighty" Close. A year ago Vanderbilt had a player named Coffee. Blinky named him "Cups" Coffee. Both suffer mightily with the Commodores in defeat and rejoice in victory.

HALLOWEEN BALL AT DRIVING CLUB OPENS SOCIAL SEASON

Debutante Coterie Claims Spotlight at Brilliant Event

Atlanta's social season was auspiciously inaugurated last evening by the brilliant Halloween ball given at the Piedmont Driving Club with the charming debutante coterie claiming the social spotlight at this important formal event. The clubhouse was ablaze with myriad lights, bedecked with gorgeous flowers and stately palms and many attractive features, symbolic of the Halloween season, added considerably to the pleasure of the several hundred guests assembling for this annual and long-heralded event.

Led by Miss Ida Nevin, president of the Debutante Club of 1931-32, the debutantes wearing stunning evening costumes, escorted by handsome beaux wearing conventional evening suits, marched the length of the ballroom to the stirring strains of a popular march played by the orchestra. They were applauded upon their entrance and all along the line of march to their table, placed at the far end of the ballroom, and admiring throng clapping hands in approval of the picture of beauty and youth making the first formal bow to society. The debutantes wore shoulder bouquets sent by their escorts and carried shower bouquets of Talsman roses tied with bows of tulle, which were hung on the backs of their chairs, adding to the effect of the table.

Ballroom Decorations.

The spacious ballroom with its colorful decorations, expressive of the Halloween season, provided a brilliant setting. Golden-colored corn stalks stacked on either side of the entrance were lighted by red electric lights and were surrounded by impish red figures with electrically lighted eyes. Piled high in the corners of the room and before the fireplace were corn stalks, pumpkins, autumn leaves and cotton bolls. These decorations encircled the base of each stately white column, and suspended between each column high above the dancers' heads were garlands of black and orange-colored ribbons, gayly bedecked with jack-o'-lanterns and figures of black witches and goblins. Friezes of these bright colored figures graced the side walls of the room and were suspended in streamer effect over the mantel. Varicolored fall flowers featured the decorations of the tables arranged around the outer edge of the room and the salons adjoining the ballroom.

Debutantes' Costumes.

Miss Ida Nevin, who was escorted by Charles Andrews and Robert Stroz, of Tifton, Ga., presented a striking picture in a gown of white tulle and black crepe, with a wide black belt and a large flat bow finished the neckline at the back and the long ends fell gracefully to the floor. Miss Annie Reine, vice president, with Steve Barnett and Wiley Arnold, was escorted in ivory satin made with a full skirt, a circular collar surrounding the low-cut décolletage was ornamented with tiny satin-covered buttons and a sash tied in a bow in back. Miss Harriett Wynne, secretary, escorted by Jim Wilcox and Joe High Williams, was charming in a model of low-cut blue satin cut on the modish bias lines and fashioned with low-cut décolletage fastened with shoulder straps held by rhinestone buckles. Miss Nancy Frederick, treasurer, escorted by Robert Peggam III and Lindsay Hopkins Jr., wore a gown of beige lace posed over a satin slip and becoming to her titian hair. A soft scarf gave an interesting note to the neckline and darker band of lace bordered the full skirt. Miss Helen Riddings, who was escorted by Frank Rowsey and George Forrester, was escorted in chartreuse green tulle with a V-shaped neckline and featuring a sash of bronze ribbon. Miss Frances Clarke, with her escorts, G. B. Strickler and Edward Smith, combined black velvet and white tulle in her modish gown. A large white bow tied in the back gave a lustre effect. Miss Mary Crenshaw, with Charles Shepherd and Steve Malone, wore a model of French blue georgette, em-

College Belles Typify Halloween Spirit

The spirit of Halloween revelry is charmingly typified by Misses Florence Bryan, Mary Bryan and Betty Schroder, who are pictured in colorful costumes, such as those which will be seen at the many Halloween festivities to be given this week-end. The Misses Bryan, who are students at Oglethorpe University, where they are pledges to the Chi Omega fraternity, are daughters of Judge and Mrs. Shepard Bryan, and were honor guests at the tea at which their sister, Mrs. Colquitt Carter Jr., entertained last week at her home on West Wesley road, Miss Schroder, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Schroder, is spending her first winter at home after attending school in the east for several years. Costumes by courtesy of Davison-Paxon Company and photo by Kenneth Rogers, staff photographer.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Criticism Is Directed at Something Outside of Ourselves But It Is Bred in the Innermost Recesses of Our Own Hearts.

Friends, are you critical of your friends and acquaintances? Are you a self-appointed judge of people's motives and conduct? Perhaps your attitude grows out of a crushing sense of your own inferiority from under which you crawl to discover and expose the weakness of those you fancy may be more vulnerable than yourself. Or perhaps in this attempt you hope to divert the attention of the public from you to them. Perhaps you are jealous of your neighbor and that state of mind prompts you to try to break him in two and show him to the world as a piece of cheap pottery instead of the fine and priceless porcelain that he appears to be. Or it may possibly be that you are a true reformer, one who must, of necessity, tear down before you can rebuild and reform. No matter in which of these classes you belong, your criticisms will reveal more of your own character than of the characters of those you criticize.

People may applaud your perspicacity. They may concede you to be clever. They may laugh at your wit but they will not love you, seeing that you are not merciful. You lack that divine quality which Shakespeare said: "It droppeth as the gentle dew from heaven upon the earth beneath."

It is twice blessed; It bleaseth him that gives and him that takes.

One of the chief contributing causes of an artificial attitude is an overbearing conceit. The very act of criticism is an assumption on your part that you have some superiority that enables you to pass on the actions of others. When you criticize the way your friends are raising their children the necessary inference is that you think you could make a neater job of it. When you criticize your neighbors for the way they spend their money, or the way they board it, you intimate that you could handle it better. When you criticize the clergyman because he doesn't fill the pews the implication is plain that you think if you were in his place you could preach to a full house.

Every criticism is an arrogant assumption of superiority.

Are you critical? Turn your searchlight in. There you will discover that you are not better than your fellows. Perhaps more fortunate in heritage, in experience, than noblesse oblige. Turn your searchlight in. You are no better than your fellows. Perhaps your lines have fallen in more pleasant places.

RUTH JUDD RETURNED TO PHOENIX FOR TRIAL

PHOENIX, Ariz., Oct. 30.—(AP)—Winnie Ruth Judd came home today to stand trial for her life, for the slaying of Mrs. Agnes Le Roi and Miss Hedvig Samuelson, once known as her best friends.

Mrs. Judd was ushered speedily through a gaping crowd and taken through the portals of the jail, almost on a dead run—the end of her fight against extradition and an Arizona trial.

Her nerves were jangled by reports, reaching her en route from Los Angeles during the 15-hour journey by automobile, of milling crowds waiting to see her, and she abandoned herself to terror as she neared the outskirts of Phoenix. She covered the floor of Sheriff J. R. McFadden's automobile when a motorcycle patrolman, a member of her police escort in Phoenix, struck her and was sent spinning from his mount.

The automobile whirled into the courthouse drive, where more than 1,000 spectators were held back by fences and ropes.

The crowd remained orderly after a vain concerted rush in an effort to see the gliding slayer.

Mrs. Judd was rushed through the courthouse rear basement entrance, through the sheriff's office and into an elevator.

Two minutes later, six floors above, she had entered officially into the jail by Sheriff McFadden. She opened her lips for the first time since the courthouse had been reached.

"Well," she breathed, "I'm glad I'm here at last."

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—(P)—In a fresh outburst of buying, wheat and rye today surpassed the season's previous top quotations, and strongly reflected brisk export demand for wheat.

It was confirmed that United States government sponsored agencies had been selling wheat to be shipped overseas, and had simultaneously been making December future delivery contracts in exchange.

BY ALEXANDER HENDERSON.
NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Railroad and high-grade industrial obligations achieved a more than moderate advance in market today where the sales totaled $12,481,000, somewhat larger than yesterday's.

Irregular gains were scored in the majority of instances. The entire list of United States Treasury and Liberty issues closed with plus signs.

Indications that the public holding of currency was coming to an end affected optimistically the outlook of the erratic stock, foreign issues were South American, being in demand, although the Brazilian issues lost some of their recent gains.

The demand for rail bonds was said to have been reflected in the present ease of the money market and the belief that many of them were selling at bargain prices.

Public utility loans started out rather encouragingly, but closed fractionally down from yesterday.

NEW YORK CENTRAL ASKS WAGE REVISION.
NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—(AP)—The New York Central railroad today announced that its officials are negotiating with the road's employees to voluntarily accept a 10 percent wage reduction for a period of one year.

AIR VIEWS

A NEW comfort for those who patronize Atlanta's air transport services will be placed on regular schedule by the Atlanta Baggage and Cab Company. The buses, which will speed to the center of Candler field operations, after making a round of all hotels to pick up plane passengers and others who wish to ride to the field, will make six round trips each day. The downtown terminal will be located at 98 North Forsyth street. The first trip in the morning will get passengers to the airport in ample time for those who board the first transport plane departing, A. L. Belle Isle, president of the company, said Friday. A franchise has been granted the A. B. & C. company by the public service commission for the operation of the line, and the fare has been fixed at 75 cents for each passenger each way. Transportation to and from the airport has long been a problem for local aviation operators and the new service should do much to popularize the field with those who now own no transportation facilities of their own.

Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, generally regarded as the world's outstanding aviators for 1931, found out a few days ago that aviation hero-worshippers are as fierce as their short-lived adulation is extravagant. Landing at Bolling field, Washington, a few days ago, for their appointment with President Hoover, they found not a reporter, cameraman or single spectator to greet them. There was not even transportation to take them to the White House, until the commanding officer of Bolling, Major Davidson, volunteered his services. The minds of the globe-circlers must have been a good deal shaken by the fact that they were so long ago when they were praised, paraded, hounded, and honored. Verily, the public crowds are today and forgets them tomorrow.

Atlanta air corps reserve officers have learned with a great deal of pleasure that First Lieutenant Edward J. Hillery, air corps pilot who has been here several months on the temporary basis from his regular post at Pope field, Fort Bragg, N. C., has been ordered to conduct flight maneuvers at Bolling field, Washington, D. C., which is powered with a 125-horsepower Kinner B-5, was flown to Asheville Friday afternoon by the new owner, who left the plane at the Asheville airport. On the flight to Augusta Thursday, Hillery was accompanied by Albert B. Stinson, factory man, who was flying a Locomobile Junior. The latter went from Augusta to other points in the southern territory he covers.

Several visiting planes landed at Candler field during the last day or so. L. G. Mason, of the Montgomery School of Aeronautics, landed with two passengers in a Curtiss-Wright Sportsman and his ship was stored for the night in the Blevins Aircraft Corporation hangar, J. P. Little, of Charlotte, N. C., landed with two passengers in a General Aircraft and will return home this morning; W. L. "Young" Stirling, accompanied by "Pat" Stirling, landed during the afternoon in his six-place Travel Air monoplane and will continue his beating of the bushes some time today; a Stinson Junior, piloted by G. K. Mower, who was accompanied by a mechanic and two passengers. These three out-of-town ships were serviced at the Curtiss-Wright hangar.

Another "convert" to the utility of the airplane in covering sales territories with economy and dispatch was the Curtiss-Wright airplane, which was flown by American Airways, Inc., and the new customer is Arthur C. Bromberg, widely known Atlanta manufacturer. The Curtiss-Wright airplane, which is a four-engine, wide area to cover for his company, Mr. Bromberg heretofore had done all of his traveling by train. He is expected to arrive in Atlanta on the air transport idea and a day or so ago departed for Los Angeles. It was his first long trip in the air.
